Her Chevrolet Heaven.
Talk or Action.
Farmer, Stick.

NEWTON, Kas., Dec. 7.

THIS city, with farms all around it, sees the end of another peaceful day. Thousands of automobiles park at a slant, along wide streets, front bumpers touching iron pipe railings where buggies were hitched in old days. No buggies now, before the hardware shop, the drug store or the bank.

THIS train bound for the Pacific, over the Santa Fe, goes through mile after mile of level corn fields, stalks standing, grain husked, carried away. Modern methods could transform those surplus cornstalks into news print paper or imitation silk dresses of excellent quality. That will happen and some day the farmer may live to see his cornstalks worth more than his corn.

KANSAS CITY, "back east," wants the 1928 Republican convention, thinks Republicans should house the Midwest to please farmers.

San Francisco, "out West" looking through the Golden Gate toward Asia, wants the convention and means to get it.

This is a big country, wide and great. Kansas City knows San Francisco, Portland, Me., knows Miami, as little as Peking knows Paris.

But inside our boundaries, everything is united, no tariff walls separate the 48 united nations, brotherly competition makes them all more efficient.

OF ALL sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest for Miss Vivian Houser of Kansas City are these: "They stole my Chevrolet." Every day that Chevrolet took Miss Houser to work at the Brockett Cement Company, 2035 East Nineteenth street, and brought her back every evening. She and her best friend, Dorothy Kilgore, drove about to get the air and on Sundays spent the day out doors. No wonder Miss Houser advertises this appeal to the thieves, "Please leave Chevrolet coupe taken Monday night where it may be found. My only heaven."

A human being without an automobile is like a bird in a cage. Perhaps Mr. Sloan, president of General Motors, will help Miss Houser to get another "heaven."

CONGRESS opens with 5,400 new bills introduced. Congressman McLeod of Michigan wants a national referendum to repeal the prohibition amendment. He won't get it.

OHIO BOY KILLS HIS MOTHER

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Dec. 7.—Angered because he had been forced to attend school, Andrew Dyken, 15, of Methodist Ridge, shot and killed his mother, Mrs. Mary Dyken, as she stood in the doorway of their home, and when the shots attracted his father, Nick Dyken, and a farmhand, John Martis, he shot both. The boy escaped.

The boy returned home last night long after school had been dismissed, carrying a shotgun. His mother was in the doorway and he fired, killing her almost instantly. The father and Martis hurried from the field to learn the cause of the shooting and after shooting his father, the boy shot Martis. Both will recover.

250 City Jobs Cut In Budget

No additional police or firemen.

That is the decision reached by Council, trying to slash the budget presented by Mayor Charles H. Kline.

The decision was made at a budget session last night when, on motion of Councilman James F. Malone, nearly 250 new jobs, costing $345,000 annually, were dropped from the financial program.

Among the new positions ripped from the budget were 104 additional patrolmen, 60 more firemen, 20 employes to man the new Tuberculosis Hospital, and scattered jobs in a number of departments.

A drive to persuade Council to reverse its decision, in part at least, started early this morning, advocates

Tears Choke Remus

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

COURTHOUSE, CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 7.—George Remus broke down and sobbed in the courtroom at his trial for murder today when Harry Truesdale, of Hamilton, O., testified Mrs. Imogene Holmes Remus hired him to assassinate Remus.

His 24-year-old daughter, Romola Remus, at the defendant's side in the prisoner's docket, tried to pacify him and then she, too, collapsed, and was assisted from the courtroom in a hysterical condition.

Her shrieks resounded through the corridors and it was several minutes before she could control herself.

BARES DEATH PLOT

Truesdale testified he had followed Remus on several occasions for the purpose of killing him.

"I was offered $10,000 by Mrs. Remus at the Alms Hotel, Cincinnati, to do the job," said Truesdale. "She gave me $250 expense money and I was to get $10,000 the day after he was murdered."

Remus put his head in his hands. His frame shook. Soon he was crying audibly. He tried to hide his tears and then he signaled to Judge Chester R. Shook that he was breaking down.

"The jury will be excused," said the court, quickly sizing up the situation.

As the jury filed out, Romola, her arms about her father's broad shoulders, began to weep.

Gently two bailiffs took her from her father. Tears were streaming down the cheeks of the pretty, titian-haired girl. She collapsed completely.

Remus, meanwhile broke down entirely.

They took him upstairs to his cell on the sixth floor. There he lay for 10 minutes on a couch moaning and crying out about "injustice" and "persecution."

Court recessed indefinitely in view of the dramatic situation that had arisen.

SENATOR BARRED, 50 TO 32

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—All hopes of Senator-Elect Frank L. Smith, Republican, of Illinois, winning a senatorial toga on the strength of his 1926 election disappeared this afternoon when the Senate, by a formal vote, denied him the right to take his oath of office.

The vote came when the Senate defeated a resolution offered by Senator Deneen, Republican, of Illinois, asking that the oath be administered Smith, pending final settlement of the slush fund charges raised against his primary campaign.

The vote was 32 to 50.

Twenty-seven Republicans and five Democrats voted to give the oath to Smith while 12 Republicans, 37 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite voted against him.

Convention Site Not Picked

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The Republican National Committee was deadlocked after 10 ballots this afternoon in its efforts to pick the 1928 convention city.

At 1 o'clock the committee, unable to make headway, recessed for an hour. Feeling among partisans of the various cities was intense.

San Francisco led for eight ballots. Kansas City went ahead on the ninth and tenth, Detroit was far behind in third place, with Chicago, Philadelphia and Cleveland virtually out of the running.

The tenth ballot follows:

Kansas City, 44; San Francisco, 41; Detroit, 9; Philadelphia, 3; Chicago, 3, and Cleveland, 2.

Teeth Rout Burglar

MISS WILMA PARMENTER

A burglar who attacked Miss Parmenter in her home, 64 Hazelwood avenue, this morning, was put to rout when the girl sank her teeth into his hand as he attempted to smother her with bed clothing. Later police arrested John Sullivan, Lytle street, as a suspect in the case. A cut beneath the girl's eye, inflicted during the struggle, can be seen in the photograph.

GIRL BITES BURGLAR, HE FLEES BEDROOM

Biting an intruder who attacked her as she lay in bed early this morning, Wilma Parmenter, 18, of 64 Hazelwood avenue, frustrated an attempt to rob her home. After his fingers had been severely bitten the robber fled.

The girl awakened this morning at 2 o'clock to discover a shabbily dressed man attempting to smother her. One of his fingers slipped between her teeth and she bit hard. Failing in the attempt to smother her, the man tried to choke the girl. Not succeeding, he fled through the front door. The girl's face was badly scratched in the encounter.

Hazelwood police later arrested John Sullivan, 22, of 4933 Lytle street, who, they say, was prowling around the district. He was charged with being a suspicious character and will be arraigned in Morals Court.

EX-AGENT GETS 60 DAYS' SENTENCE

Joseph R. Oliver, 35, of 6621 Lyric street, a former prohibition agent, was sentenced to 60 days in jail by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, in Federal Court today, after he had pleaded guilty to possession and manufacture of moonshine whisky. Oliver told the court he had been driven to bootlegging to support his wife and four children.

HUGHES WON'T RUN, FREE-FOR-ALL FIGHT FOR NOMINATION ON Disappointed at President's Won't Run Again Statement, But Not Candidate.

Cabinet Member Is Expected to Resign And Formally Enter Race for Presidency.

By FRASER EDWARDS,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—It's a free-for-all fight for the Republican presidential nomination now.

President Coolidge, in a speech to the Republican National Committee last night, definitely closed the door on his own candidacy for renomination and opened wide the way to all Republican aspirants to the White House.

Unqualified announcements of candidacies, such as that made by Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, Republican leader of the Senate, may not be forthcoming. But there will be unmistakable activities among the presidential possibilities in rounding up delegates.

Some such action, which can be construed as an open avowel of his candidacy, is expected on the part of Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce. As a member of the President's official family, Hoover has been embarrassed more than any of the candidates by the uncertainty surrounding Mr. Coolidge's statement in the Black Hills on August 2.

It was stated on high authority that Hoover will resign from the Cabinet at an early date to wage an

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state, issued a statement today saying he was not a candidate for the Republican nomination for President of the United States.

"I am not a candidate in any sense," said Mr. Hughes. "I am keenly disappointed by Mr. Coolidge's decision, but so far as my own attitude toward the candidacy is concerned, I stand by the statement I made last May. I have nothing to add to it."

In his statement last May Mr. Hughes said:

"I do not wish my name to be used in any contingency. I am too old to run for President and I would neither seek nor accept the nomination."

At that time Mr. Hughes said he believed President Coolidge would be renominated and re-elected.

"There should be no doubt as to my attitude," he said. "I am for President Coolidge first, last and all the time."

That statement was provoked by reports that a Hughes boom would be launched in the event President Coolidge should definitely withdraw.

Congress Probe Asked Of Mexican Expose

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Congressional investigation of the expose of alleged intrigue of the Mexican and Liberal Nicaraguan governments by the Hearst newspapers was proposed in the House today in a resolution offered by Representative Loring Black (Dem.) of New York.

Stating that the documents on which the expose was based "are of such high importance to our diplomatic relations with Mexico and other powers" and that "the authenticity of such documents has been questioned through the press of Mexico," Black declared that Congress should investigate their authenticity.

TELLEZ FOUGHT CALLES $1,200,000 SLUSH FUND

Disclosures Today

Manuel C. Tellez, the Mexican minister to the United States, opposed the plan of President Calles and Arturo M. Elias to spend $1,200,000 for propaganda in the United States, The Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers reveal today. This fund, documents show, was to be paid to officials of the American government, according to the scheme laid down by Elias, the Mexican financial agent in New York.

By JOHN PAGE

(Copyright, 1927, by Washington Herald)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Manuel C. Tellez, Mexican ambassador to Washington, warned his government in June, 1926, that if the payment of $1,200,000 to high American "personages" should be made as then proposed, it might bring diplomatic relations to a "worse state" than that in which they were.

This warning is disclosed today by The Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst papers in the publication of official correspondence secretly conducted between President Calles and the Mexican financial agent in New York, who proposed the payment, first revealed by the Hearst papers yesterday.

The names of the men for whom this $1,200,000 payment was intended are known to The Sun-Telegraph.

The Mexican government, as the Hearst papers will show in this and succeeding articles of this series, was planning to pay this large sum of money, $1,200,000, to officials of our own government; men of influence, power and responsibility; men with a large popular following in this country—at the very moment it was plotting to overthrow a government friendly to us, to prevent our construction of a Nicaraguan transcontinental canal vital to our interests and safety, and plotting, also, to involve us in trouble with a great world power, Japan.

Senor Elias, it appears from a letter from President Calles, his half-brother, visited Mexico City for the purpose of placing before the Mexican executive a plan involving the payment of $1,200,000, and suggested that nothing be said about it to Ambassador Tellez. But Calles told him verbally at that time and later by letter that Tellez must be consulted in the affair. The original letter, dated June 10, 1926, is in the possession of the Hearst papers and is published in facsimile elsewhere in The Sun-Telegraph.

The text of the letter follows:

Mexico, D. F., June 10, 1926.

Senor Arturo M. Elias,
Financial Agent of Mexico,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Brother:

I did not answer your code telegram of yesterday (June 9, 1926) because I believe it inadvisable to treat an affair of such transcendence in this form.

I believe that when you were here I explained to you the Budget Slashes Dry Law Fund

By KENNETH CLARK,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Tax reduction this session should be held to $225,000,000, President Coolidge declared today in transmitting to Congress his message on the budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929. Total expenditures are estimated at $4,358,793,765.

Any further cut is unwarranted, the President said, and might upset the financial stability of the Federal Government. The House Ways and Means committee, in drafting the new revenue bill, has adhered fairly closely to the President's warning. It exceeded his figures by only approximately $10,000,000. A movement is under way, however, to increase the reduction when the bill gets to the floor of the House and Senate.

The estimated surplus for 1929 is $252,540,283, which is about half of the estimated surplus for 1928, and one-third of the actual surplus for the 1927 fiscal year. The estimated surplus as of next June is $454,283,808, or about twice the surplus indicated in the President's budget message last year.

The estimated cost of running the government in 1929 is $3,556,967,031 as against $3,621,314,285 estimated for 1928 or a reduction of $64,357,254. Estimated receipts for 1929 are $3,-

PITTSBURGH HOLIDAY ALE CARGO SEIZED IN DETROIT

Pitt Opens Dramatic Season

BUSINESS APPROACHING NORMALCY, MELLON SAYS

NOT IN LEAP YEAR, EITHER

Charlotte Singer, of the University of Pittsburgh Dramatic Club, demonstrates her thespian ability to K. E. Reaneckamp, who seems a trifle too unmoved for realism. Both are in the cast of Sir James Barrie's mystery play, "Shall We Join the Ladies?"

LET IT SNOW! WHO CARES!

Adelaide Mills and Patricia Wood, Pitt players, in the same cast of don't care whether it's snowing or blowing, they're happy as they prepare to take part tonight in the initial performance, which is to be presented in the auditorium of the Frick Teachers' Training School, Thackeray street.

IN TARKINGTON PLAY

Claire June Rosner and Robert Kleeb take part in Booth Tarkington's, "The Trysting Place," another comedy to be presented by the Pitt Club in opening their 1927-28 season tonight.

"THEM EYES!"

Robert Lynch surely must be saying "The Flattering Word," to Cynthia Dean, from the expression in Miss Dean's eyes. Both take part in the play by that name tonight, the third of the Dramatic Club's opening night program.

NAB HOLIDAY ALE CARGO BOUND FOR CITY

DETROIT, Dec. 7.—Two hundred cases of ale, which police say was due for Christmas consumption in Pittsburgh, will not be used as holiday cheer as the result of seizure yesterday of two heavily laden trucks, bearing Pennsylvania license plates, by police at Trenton, a suburb of Detroit.

Two patrolmen of the Trenton police department, near Moorers Grove, noticed the big trucks pulling slowly out to the main highway. As they approached to investigate the driver of one jumped out and disappeared into the darkness. Joseph McDonald, 48, who said he was from Pittsburgh, was arrested as the driver of the second truck. He refused to say where he had obtained the liquor and whether he was bound for Pittsburgh. He insisted he did not know the name of the escaped driver.

He pleaded not guilty to a charge of transporting liquor at his arraignment and was held under $500 bond for investigation. An examination will be held Thursday afternoon.

ASKS DOOM OF BEACH, WIDOW

COURTROOM, MAYS LANDING, N. J., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—The testimony given in the Lilliendahl murder trial warrants a verdict of murder in the first degree against the widow of the victim and her elderly admirer, Prosecutor Hinkle asserted in his summation to the jury today.

Hinkle said he fully expected such a verdict with a penalty of either death or life imprisonment. He then began reviewing the testimony of state's witnesses.

"If Willis Beach did commit this murder," he said, "Margaret Lilliendahl, who was there, knew it and her story of the Negroes is false. If one of them is guilty the other is guilty and we believe the state has made its case."

Suddenly Hinkle stopped.

"That is all," he said.

He had been speaking less than five minutes.

Edison Hedges then began his summation for Beach.

Hedges asked what the motive could possibly have been for Beach to have committed the crime with which he is charged.

"The only motive could have been money or love," he said. "And the state has established neither of these.

"No money is involved and love is a far-fetched notion in this case. Beach is married. He has a family. All the members of this family have come to his support here. Does that indicate that Beach was planning to cast off his wife for another woman?"

Miner Claims Parentage of Mrs. Roselle

PETER WETTSTEIN

Wettstein, 60, a Swiss coal miner of Girard, Kan., holds affadavits to prove he is the father of Josephine Haldeman-Julius, who recently wed Aubrey Roselle in a companionate marriage after the ceremony. Josephines' father and mother announced that she had been born to them six years out of wedlock, instead of adopted as they had contended previously. They later retracted the statement.

THREE COUPLES SEEK TO CUT MARITAL TIES

Libels in divorce have been filed in Common Pleas Court as follows: Anna Barnett against Benjamin Barnett; Hilda Shirley McKnight against William N. McKnight, Jr., and John W. Eble against Evelya Eble.

BIRTHPLACE OF PUBLISHER'S DAUGHTER

In this decrepit miner's shack, Wettstein asserts, Josephine, now the recognized daughter of the wealthy publisher, was born. Haldeman-Julius paid him a sum of money—characterized by the miner as "large"—to renounce his claims to the girl.

a beverage "intoxicating." He won't get that.

Congressman Niedringhaus of Missouri would change the Volstead act to permit the manufacture of 2.75 alcoholic beverages, meaning light beer. He won't get his wish.

THE big things before the Congress are Colorado River power and irrigation, control of Mississippi and other floods, construction of waterways connecting the Lakes with the Gulf and the ocean, and the question of tax reduction.

Next fall you will know how much of this Congress was talk, how much action.

SENATOR CAPPER'S able newspaper, the Topeka Capital, quotes this statement: "The farmer fears he is on the downward road to peasantry, wonders why he should stick to the plow and hold his children to a calling stigmatized everywhere."

TWO million farmers have quit the farms during the last six years. You feel as you cross Senator Capper's beautiful state of Kansas, that many of the two millions regret it. A Kansas farm just outside the car window now, with hay stacks, straw stacks, piles of cornstalks, a good barn, hen house, pigsty, cattle and horses in the field, and an automobile in the shed, are a considerable improvement on a small flat four flights up in a New York City side street.

THIS is a city man's advice to the farmer:

Stay on the farm where you really live. The company of cows, horses, pigs, sheep and the wide sky is better than associating with crowds in the subway twice a day. Work until you get an independence even late in life. Then take it to California or the Gulf Coast of Florida, let sunshine add twenty years to your life. Even then you will miss the old farm, the barnyard in winter, the pig that runs, grunting, at your step. The busy day in spring, the consciousness of creating real wealth and of being your own boss.

GIRL FOILS AUTO SHEIKS

MISS HELEN BUKA

Lured into an automobile on the pretext that a friend was waiting there to see her, Helen Buka, 19, told Judge Brandon in Morals Court, was taken for an hour's ride by five auto sheiks. Fighting their advances, she at last succeeded in having them return her to the home where she works in Squirrel Hill. Her pretext was, she said, that if they would let her make sure the babies which she was taking care of were sleeping, she would then accompany them. She found her employer and his wife at home and they called the police. Five youths arrested by police as her abductors, denied the alleged attack.

LIQUOR LAW FUND CUT IN BUDGET

$69,497,314, as against $4,075,596,091 for 1928, or a slump of $266,100,777. These figures do not include postal revenues and expenditures which are paid from postal revenues.

DRY ENFORCEMENT CUT

For the first time since prohibition went into effect a decrease rather than an increase in the funds for dry law enforcement is sought. A cut of $591,265 in the prohibition bureau's allotment for next year is the result, it was explained, of economies in administration and in the reorganization of the bureau, which resulted in the transfer of some employes to other agencies of the government.

The effect of transfers is felt by the customs service, for which an additional $1,000,000 was recommended, most of it for salaries of men transferred to patrol of the borders to prevent liquor smuggling.

The expenditure estimate for 1929 does not include money for flood control, except the fifth-year allowance of $10,000,000 in the six-year program authorized by Congress. The President said that adequate flood protection "meets the requirement of absolute and urgent necessity."

The budget, the President declared, has been "directly responsible for our present position of financial stability."

ASSAILS LARGE TAX CUT

"To jeopardize our balanced budget, to do anything that in the most remote degree would threaten to interfere with the orderly processes of wise financing, to take steps in the interest of tax reduction that would necessitate either revolutionary curtailment of important federal projects and activities or compel a later upward revision of the rates, or both, is unthinkable," he said.

Since the war the public debt had been reduced on June 30, 1927, by $8,084,794,716 at an annual saving in interest of approximately $320,000,000.

Estimates for the army contemplate a regular enlisted personnel of 118,750, with 12,000 officers. Money is provided for the second year increment in the five-year program looking toward 1,800 airplanes for the army air corps.

Air Service—"Our procurement of aircraft and accessories is from private industry. That is as it should be. We have gone further than this. Private industry is now operating by contract our entire postal air mail service. We now have 13 contract air mail routes in operation and seven others under contract with a view to early operation. This policy of co-operating with private industry is helping to bring America to the forefront in air navigation. More than 10,000 miles of lighted airways will be completed next year."

Federal Aid to States—"To relieve the states of their just obligations by resort to the federal treasury in the final result is hurtful rather than helpful to the state, and unfair to the payers of national taxes. We should not only decidedly refuse to countenance additional federal participation in state-aid projects, but should make careful study of all our activities of that character with a view to curtailing them."

Second Liberty Loan—Retirement of this loan will result in a total annual saving in interest of more than $65,000,000.

U. S. NEARS NORMALCY —MELLON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Although business showed a recession during the last year, it now is approaching a normal expectancy with sound underlying fundamentals, Secretary Mellon said today in his annual report to Congress.

Under the heading of "the present situation of business," the Treasury Secretary asserted that business activity began in the spring months of this year to fall below the totals of last year. As a result of this recession, he said, business is "now being conducted on a basis that conforms more nearly to the normal expectancy as judged from the regular rate of growth of the country that has prevailed on the average for some years."

"While business is not as active as in most of 1926, it can hardly be said to be subnormal and the underlying fundamentals appear to be sound," he added. "Another indication of healthy business conditions is the recent recovery in commodity prices due in the main to the rise in agricultural prices."

Credit conditions were described as sound, as indicated by the handling of the peak load of crop financing without strain and with interest rates easing in the middle of October.

BUSINESS SUMMARY

Explaining that the Treasury accumulated vast amounts of information on business and finance, Secretary Mellon said a survey of this data suggested the following conclusions as to business in the past year:

"A large volume of business was done simultaneously with declining commodity prices—an unusual combination of circumstances.

"The volume of new construction remained large, as engineering, industrial and public works projects were in sufficient volume practically to offset a decline in construction of dwellings.

"High wages, due to increased average productivity per worker, and lower living costs, due to declining prices, resulted in a sustained purchasing power for a large variety of consumers' commodities.

"Business was free from the accumulation of excessive inventories, advance ordering subject to cancellations and unreasonable speculation in commodities, and a spirit of caution prevailed generally among business men.

"Automobile production continued at a pace somewhat reduced from the year before, and dangers of a serious slump have been lessened as demands for replacements are now sufficient to absorb about half of the year's output.

"Competition became more intense and the largest profits were made by those concerns capable of introducing economies or capturing the market by adaptation of their products to the demand.

"Charges for the use of fixed capital were reduced both on industrial and government securities and on farm loans.

"Banks in the United States increased their loans and investments about $2,000,000,000 at the same time that they reduced somewhat their dependence upon the federal reserve system, due mainly to gold imports and a decline in requirements for currency."

Although internal revenue collections showed an increase of only $31,774,965 during the last fiscal year over the previous 12 months, Secretary Mellon declared that a "closer analysis of the collections shows more definitely that tax changes were responsible for the failure of such receipts to increase." Receipts from internal revenue totaled $2,869,414,842, while income from customs and other miscellaneous sources amounted to $1,259,980,099 or an increase of $134,963,786 over the previous year.

Emma Carus, as she appeared at the height of her career, in 1913, when she was darling of Broadway and the toast of the evening wherever theatrical folk gathered.

DEFIANT
Once she was arrested for violating a "blue law" by dancing on Sunday. She denied dancing, said she was imitating Harry Lauder's walk and won her case.

DIES IN TOTAL OBSCURITY
The years took their toll, new favorites ruled the stage which once bowed to "the darling of New York." She was fast forgotten and died the other day alone and virtually friendless. Of all the thousands who once acclaimed her but a scant dozen paid the homage of attending the funeral.

Thaw, Girls Crash Film Citadel

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Harry K. Thaw stepped from a train here late yesterday with a film actress on each arm and announced that his visit was for the purpose of looking things over in a motion picture way in Hollywood. Thaw recently took a turn as a picture producer, and the two actresses—Susan Hughes and Anita Rivers—are members of his own film company.

After numerous poses for photographers, the aging Pittsburgh millionaire and slayer of Stanford White 21 years ago, told newspaper men of his picture producing activities in the East. Three pictures already have been made on Long Island, he said, and more would follow.

Included in Thaw's party, besides the two actresses, were Harold A. Foshay, New York director; Mrs. Maude Rivers, mother of Miss Rivers, and a corps of secretaries.

Thaw said he would remain here until after the first of the year.

IN DRY TOILS THIRD TIME

What prohibition officers say was the third arrest of Morris Baff, 38, of North Pacific avenue, was a triple-action affair. From his auto they took a quantity of corn sugar. In a house at 4826 Mossfield street, before which he parked the machine, they found two stills with Norman Jones, Negro, tending them. The garage in the rear of 902 Chislett street, from which Baff took the auto, yielded 140 gallons of moonshine.

An alcohol plant with a capacity of 50 gallons and a small still were seized when prohibition officers raided a house in the rear of 139 Forty-fifth street and arrested Stanley Fierponski, 42, of Detroit.

Poor Give Mite to Aid Twenty Neediest

There is a saying to the effect that the poor are the best friends of the poor. It is recalled by the contributions that persons in modest circumstances are making to The Sun-Telegraph's Christmas fund for the relief of the Twenty Neediest Cases of destitution in Pittsburgh, as reported by the charitable organizations.

A gift of a dollar for these unfortunates was received today from a woman who recently lost the savings of a lifetime in the failure of a financial institution. Notwithstanding the embarrassment that this has caused

BENTLEYVILLE MEN SENT TO WORKHOUSE

George Jones and Luther Carmichle, Negroes, of Bentleyville, were convicted of robbery yesterday in Criminal Court and sentenced to one year in the workhouse by Visiting Judge William T. Darr of Brookville. On the night of November 5 they held up and robbed Frank Miller, a miner of Bentleyville, taking his gold watch and $45.

Man Shot In Battle Over Rum

In a battle over moonshine, Joseph Sandy, confectionery store proprietor, 208 North Sheridan avenue, was shot in the right hip last night by Allen Tuckley, 21, 1853 Jancey street, who had wrested Sandy's gun from him after the storekeeper had fired two shots, according to police. Later Tuckley and three friends were arrested in Sharpsburg.

Tuckley, with Donald Painter, 21, of 9 Monetta place, had gone to Sandy's store and an argument arose when the men demanded liquor. Sandy is said to have wielded a pick handle and when disarmed obtained a revolver and fired two shots. Both went wild. Tuckley wrested the revolver from Sandy and turned it on him, inflicting a wound in the hip.

Arraigned this morning, the men were held over.

Make Haul Unarmed

By Universal Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Three unarmed bandits with a technique that served better than revolvers, took $9,300 from Charles Cole, an insurance man, on a crowded street.

He was taking the money to the bank, carried in a brief case under his arm. The three men blocked his path, forced him to the building line, snatched the brief case and hopped into an automobile before he could utter a cry.

By the time the police got there the car was out of sight.

CHANCE TO BUY COOK WOODS FADING

Purchase of Cook Forest by the state cannot be deferred much longer if its famous stand of virgin white pine, the largest east of the Mississippi, is to be saved from the woodman's ax, it was admitted today by Thomas Liggett, secretary of the Cook Forest Association, on his return from a trip to Cooksburg to consult the Cook heirs, owners of the property.

They are very much dissatisfied with the situation, he said. In the hope that the fine old forest might be preserved as a public park they offered to sell it to the commonwealth for far less than the commercial value of the standing timber. The first move toward acquiring the property was made by the Legislature during Gov. Edwin S. Stuart's administration. That was 20 years ago, and the Cook heirs have been awaiting final action ever since, paying taxes on the 8,200-acre tract in the meantime but getting no return from it. Their patience is exhausted, Mr. Liggett said, and it is imperative that the transaction be completed before the first of the year.

The price that they ask is $650,000. The Legislature at its last session appropriated $450,000. There has been raised, in addition by popular subscription, about $150,000. Collection of the remaining $70,000 presents the difficulty. Contributions are coming in dribbets, Mr. Liggett said. There will have to be a marked increase in the volume of the gifts if the amount is to be raised in the time set.

It developed in conversation with Mr. Liggett that in addition to the desire to preserve Cook Forest for recreational purposes there are historic and scientific motives for the campaign. It is proposed to preserve the forest as a monument to the most important timber tree that the western hemisphere has produced, the white pine, which has almost vanished in the sizes that formerly were known and which will not be replaced in centuries.

The white pine, Mr. Liggett pointed out, was one of the first trees to attract the attention of the pioneer English settlers in North America. The species was new to them, but they were not slow to learn its value. Within three years after the arrival of the Pilgrim Fathers in New England their sawmills were cutting white pine, and within 15 years they were shipping it to England.

The tree itself was introduced into Europe in 1705 by Lord Weymouth, and is known in Great Britain today as the Weymouth pine. So great was the American colonists' admiration of the white pine that they used it to typify strength, sovereignty, liberty and justice. The first coins were stamped with the picture of a white pine tree, and the first flag flown by American war vessels in the Revolution bore the same emblem.

So long as white pine was to be had there was little demand for any other kind of wood. It formed the bulk of the softwood cut in New England up to 1840, and was the mainstay of the lumber business in New York, Pennsylvania and the Lake States during the remainder of the last century.

The supply of white pine appeared inexhaustible. But the virgin timber has been well-nigh exhausted. Second-growth trees may be found, but, except in small isolated tracts here and there, one will look in vain throughout the vast empire where the white pine formerly reigned supreme, for specimens of the big trees once so common, such as that cut in Highland township, Elk county, Pennsylvania, a few years ago which had a girth of 26 feet, 10 inches, at its base, and scaled in excess of 15,000 board feet. If there was any state in which the white pine was pre-eminent, it was Michigan; yet the best known tract of virgin white pine in the lower peninsula today has an area of only 100 acres.

There are thousands of acres of virgin white pine in the Cook Forest, and some of the trees are five feet thick and 175 feet tall. Mr. Liggett pointed out that if they are cut their like will never be seen again by the Pennsylvanians of today, nor by their children, nor their children's children. For centuries are required for the development of these forest monarchs.

Contributions towards the purchase of Cook Forest should be made payable and sent to the Cook Forest Association, Fitzsimons Building, 331 Fourth avenue, Pittsburgh.

MITE OF POOR AIDS 20 NEEDIEST

her and her family, she felt impelled to do what she could to help the unhappy widows, orphans, old folk and stricken husbands and fathers whose plight is so much more desperate than hers.

The poor know by bitter experience the suffering that poverty entails. If all would show their sympathy in the practical manner of the contributor referred to, the Twenty Neediest Cases fund would soon be ample.

The good that these contributors will do is exemplified in another report that has been received concerning a needy case of last year that was aided by a fund similar to that which The Sun-Telegraph is collecting. The report comes from the Associated Charities:

"Last year the man was in a tubercular hospital and the doctors gave very little hope of his returning home. The three children were very much under-nourished and required special diet. The mother had a serious spinal condition. Now we are glad to report that the man is at home and working. The family is practically self-supporting, though from time to time a little assistance must be rendered, since the man's earnings are small, because he cannot do heavy work. It was a great privilege and satisfaction to see this family through to their present status. The man had a long and satisfactory work record with one of our local industries. He was in great anxiety for fear the home would be broken up when he was making a fight for his life in the hospital. When he was assured that there was sufficient money to take care of his family until he could get home and do it himself, he gave his whole attention to getting well."

If there is sufficiently generous response to the present appeal all of the Twenty Neediest Cases will be assured of a happier Christmas than they can at present foresee, and some of them, at least, should be able to maintain their homes and recover their independence.

The cases have been reported by the Associated Charities, the Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor, the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America. Checks and money orders should be made payable to the "Twenty Neediest Cases Fund" and sent to The Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., or, if preferred, to one of the societies named.

All of the 20 cases were described in The Sunday Sun-Telegraph of November 27. One case will be repeated each day. Here is Case No. 10:

This family has the sincerest sympathy of all who know them. The father used to work in the mills and had no difficulty in providing for his children. Several years ago he developed tuberculosis of the hip. This has caused the shortening of one leg and makes it very difficult for him to obtain work. He is devoted to his wife, who is dying with tuberculosis, and to his children. The care of the household falls on the 15-year-old daughter, who plays the part of the little mother to her little brothers, 4 and 8.

Fuel, food and clothing must be furnished.

(Reported by the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor).

Case No. 11 will be described tomorrow.

When the game is up

perhaps it's cachexia (run-down condition)

When you dub everything from the tee to the cup, and feel like trading your clubs for a wheel chair, maybe it's not so much your stance or your swing as your physical condition.

You can't play golf—or do anything else—and do it well, if you're suffering from cachexia (run-down condition).

Eat some yeast; it's a great upbuilder and conditioner. If you want yeast in its purest, most convenient and palatable form, get Yeast Foam Tablets. Carry them with you; they keep for days. Swallow them whole or chew them like candy. You'll like them!

Yeast Foam Tablets come in handy 5c packets or the 10 day bottle for 50c at drug stores.

Eat Yeast Foam Tablets for cachexia (run-down condition). Loss of appetite. Indigestion. Constipation. Boils—Pimples.

"I SPY"

Being the observations of an adventuring Christmas Shopper in quest of the unusual:

A GREEN CERAMIC BOWL filled with many types of cacti in delightful soft colorings, makes a smart new decorative accent and suggests itself as a most original gift for a very modern person. $5.50. Just one of many suggestions on the Floor of Ideas. Fifth Floor.

A CARRIAGE ROBE of white clipped coney, sprinkled with ermine tails and rightly so, for a gift to his majesty, the Baby. It is lined with satin and possesses a pocket into which he may be slipped which makes it a most practical gift. $30.00. Third Floor.

A Fur Coat Made to Order

The finest of furs, the best quality of linings and finishings, and the most skilled workmanship, are assured in these coats.

Coats which are intended for Christmas gifts, should be ordered at once.

NEGLIGEES

One of those lovely informal affairs on the tea-gown type that is utterly Parisian in thought and origin. It is a delectable peach in color—of georgette. Wings make a pretense for sleeves. Rich with marabou and silk lace. $95.00. (Above).

A lounging pajama on the blase order. Shining black satin finds sharp contrast in its fire-cracker red lining and prodigal embroideries in oriental reds, blues, greens and yellows. The trousers have a stripe down the side. French. $95.00. (Right).

A French original in a very wintry robe. Heavy satin quilted by hand unites flesh with black with surprising effectiveness. Lamb's wool lined and a double padded hem. $59.50. (Lower right).

Invading masculine fields this borrows the severity of his dressing-gown and duplicates the lines in exquisite tapestried silks. Cord-bound, pockets, collar and all—mannish, and from London. $35.00. (Below).

—Horne's, Third Floor—

Interpreted in metallic or silk brocades, plain or printed velvets, tapestried silk, sheer silks, quiltings in taffeta, satins and zananas, gala prints, striped flannels.

Lavish in the use of marabou, ostrich, lace, silk appliques and chenilles, gold and silk embroidery.

According to the spirit of the wearer cut on the most austere of lines in keeping with its masculine clip or to the other extreme with every line one of femininity.

And color from the most vibrant of high shades to the gentlest of pastels.

Sizes to accommodate the junior-miss, the miss and the madame.

Imports range in price from $15.00 to $175.00.

American-made from $7.95 to $95.00.

STATIONERY

—Novel Gift Things

WHETHER the gift be large or small, it should have about it at least a touch of the unusual. This department is full of just such gifts—things with a flair of originality—many of them imported.

"The Card Shark" is one of the four unusual pencil holders for the bridge table. He's a most diverting fish-figure made out of metal and finished to look like silver. His companion-pieces are the Bridge Houn', the Bridge Bug, and Lindy's Luck. $1.00 each.

Leather Bridge Sets aren't new, but they're always welcome, and among our large assortment of them you'll find many unusually lovely ones. In different kinds of leather, some highly decorated. Containing two decks of fine gilt-edged bridge cards, a score pad and pencil, $1.50 to $15.00.

A Musical Ash Tray is a thing of beauty and unfailing joy! With a base of deep brown leather and a removable tray of etched crystal, and best of all, with a tiny spring which is released when a cigarette is laid on the holder. It plays three little tunes. $12.00.

Cigarette Sets of Etched Crystal, are most attractive. They consist of an ash tray fitted with a snuffer to match ($2.00) and a cigarete box which may be had in either of two sizes at $2.00 or $5.00.

A Smoking Set to use at the bridge table or in bed! A nonsensical little luxury which somebody'd just adore. It relieves one of the necessity of bothering with the ashes of one's cigarette, and precludes the possibility of getting smoke in one's eyes. The cigarette is held suspended over a decorative ash tray, and one smokes through a very long tube! $2.00 to $5.00.

A Nest of Ash Tray and a Cigaret Box combined—all in a cylinder of green bronze, decorated with silver bands. Rather masculine in its severe simplicity and practicality. $10.00.

—Horne's, Main Floor—

Black footwear to complete the smart black boudoir ensemble.

Leather mules and d'Orsay slippers to wear with flannel dressing gowns.

A Persian slipper from Sandalari, of Paris, to accompany lounging pajamas.

SLAYER GIVEN TWO YEARS

D. N. Bradley, Wilkinsburg Negro, entered a general plea in Criminal Court when arraigned on a charge of murder, and after a hearing, Visiting Judge William T. Darr of Brookville fixed the degree at voluntary manslaughter and imposed a sentence of one to two years in the workhouse. The defendant was accused of shooting John Foster, 21, of 2014 Durand street, during a drunken quarrel June 27 in the rear of 210 Omega street. Bradley was struck unconscious during the fight and admittedly was too drunk to recall anything that occurred. His aged father, Robert T. Bradley, of 1013 Bell street, Wilkinsburg, who could only recall his birth as dating before the Civil War, which freed him as a slave, said his son had never been in trouble otherwise, and that the defendant served 14 months overseas in the World War.

SNATCHES BABY FROM FLAMES OF HOME

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 7.—While flames threatened to destroy her home and the life of her 12-months-old baby, Mrs. Walter Duryer, who occupied the lower floor of a two-story frame dwelling, rushed into the building and brought her little daughter to safety. She was nearly trapped when she returned to the building a second time, in an attempt to salvage her furniture, and suffered an injury to her hand when she broke down a door leading to safety. The fire, of unknown origin, caused a loss of $500.

REALTY DEALER GETS YEAR

Julian S. Taylor of Wheeling, who conducted a real estate business with desk space in the office of a Fourth avenue real estate concern, was sentenced to one year in the workhouse today in Criminal Court by Judge James R. Macfarlane after entering pleas of no defense to eight charges, including misdemeanor, embezzlement, false pretense and larceny by bailee. He was accused of obtaining $675 from D. O. Casey, $500 from Mrs. Ornelia M. Ostermeyer, and $350 from Mrs. Mildred Mulvaney, in real estate transactions. N. H. Candler, representing the Accommodation Loan Company of the First National Bank Building, which received a bad check from the defendant, said that Taylor's troubles were due to his anticipation of a $165,000 real estate deal which failed to materialize.

SENTENCED TWO YEARS FOR SLASHING WOMAN

Leonard Mallory, Negro, of Homewood, was sentenced to two to four years in the workhouse in Criminal Court by Judge James R. Macfarlane after pleading guilty to felonious assault and battery. He admitted following Hosia Cooper, Negress, into the home of her cousin at 2041½ Larimer avenue, August 27, and slashing her with a knife.

NEW INVENTIONS EXPLAINED

Recent electrical inventions were demonstrated to members of the Westinghouse Club last night in the clubrooms in Wilkinsburg, by S. M. Kintner, manager of the research department of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. He was assisted in the demonstration by Dr. Phillip Thomas, Westinghouse research engineer.

Among the novelties exhibited was a light that became illuminated with the passing of a shadow over it, one that would light when a hand was held within an inch of it and another that when an aeroplane motor is operated within 1,000 feet of it will throw a switch, lighting an entire airport. A highly developed loud speaker and an induction furnace for distilling steel was also on exhibition.

You, too, will find that LUCKY STRIKES give the greatest pleasure—Mild and Mellow, the finest cigarettes you ever smoked. Made of the choicest tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"IT'S TOASTED"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

Giuseppe DeLuca

Crushed by the fall of an eighty-foot stack

DURING a recent heavy gale, the steel stack of a power house toppled and fell, completely destroying the large 7-panel switchboard that stood in its path.

Ten days after the Westinghouse Service Shop was notified, a duplicate board had been completely designed, built and delivered. Even the 75 meters and 16 "CO" relays had been mounted on the panels and wired in, to speed erection.

The Westinghouse Service Shops will serve you with the same thoroughness—in any emergency—day or night.

The Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association opened its major artist series of concerts in the Morris Kaufmann Memorial Auditorium last night with a recital by Joseph Szigeti, Hungarian violinist. There was a large audience, but every seat should have been filled to hear such unusual playing.

A year ago Szigeti was introduced to Pittsburgh by the Art Society. We all praised him at that time for his wonderful finesse in playing Mozart, which we thought was well suited to his small tone. But last night his playing was a revelation, not only because of unsuspected depth and brilliance of tone, but for a profounder understanding of the great music he performed. Exquisite harmonics flowed like a silver stream from his bow; his pizzicati were brittle and sure; double-stopping and all the other satanic tricks of violin playing were matter-of-fact accomplishments with this artist. More important, of course, is his musicianship whereby he can make the first and last notes of a long set of variations equally interesting, whereby he can pass from the breadth of tone required for Tartini to the swift figures of medieval dances, and back again to the lovely cantilena of folk music.

Ignace Strasvogel was far beyond the usual accompanist. His part of the Beethoven sonata bore all the marks of refined piano playing, and the audience was keen enough to appreciate him. As encores, Szigeti played a Spanish dance of de Falla and Pugnani-Kreisler Prelude and Allegro.

At Carnegie Music Hall a large audience attended the Christmas concert of the Pittsburgh Polyphonic Choir last night. Father Carlo Rossini conducted a program of almost exclusively Christmas music, a happy change from the usual cantata.

Since last concert, the choir seems to have lost some of its hold on phrasing and tone. The children's voices were quite weak, and the humming accompaniment of the deeper voices became monotonous. It might be well for the choir to attempt this type of program more often; the music itself is recommendation enough for public hearing.

Virginia L. Marks, winner of a recent piano contest, was awarded a gold medal by the choir, and Maddalena Cueno sang a very melodic Ave Maria recently written by Father Rossini.

BUDGETS CUTS CITY JOBS

of more police and firemen and those desiring to have the new tuberculosis center opened as soon as possible besieging the members to reconsider the matter when they convene tonight at 7:30 in another budget session.

The rapid manner in which the budgeteers disposed of all proposals for additional jobs was not the only highlight of the session last night. Another feature was an attack upon the manner in which former Mayor William A. Magee handled the affairs of the municipal garage and repair shop, made by Councilman W. Y. English, long known as a Magee supporter.

"Since we put the garage in charge of the mayor every mayor promised to keep down the costs, but none of them did," charged English.

"Didn't Mayor Magee?" queried Herron.

"No," thundered English. "He was the worst of all."

The final decision was to take control of the garage out of the hands of the Mayor and place it under the director of public safety, whose department, according to Councilman Garland, causes about 90 per cent of the work done there.

Several times during the session last night the high cost of taxicab hire, which was the first target selected by the Councilmen in the budget, entered into the discussion. Several members talked of the need for a central agency to handle taxicab books and accounts.

"I'll run it for you," offered English. "And I won't o. k. a slip unless the man makes a legitimate trip."

The offer was not accepted.

The detailed explanation of the $27,775 deficit in the appropriation for taxi service for 1927, which accounts in part for the $57,775 asked for the purpose for 1928, will not be ready for a week, attaches of the Controller's office announced.

Another $11,944 was lopped from the budget when Council voted to drop the position of "City Architect" until it was needed. The vote was 4 to 3, with English, Little, Garland and Winters voting to drop the job Herron, McArdle and Malone opposing the motion, Anderson not voting and Alderdice absent.

David McDonald, well-known horseman, who is in charge of the bureau of horses, was highly praised during the session, and put in control of harness and wagons as well.

"He is so good he should have that too," remarked Garland.

aggressive campaign for the nomination, unhampered by the responsibilities of office and free from the charge that he is the candidate of the administration.

Vice President Dawes, who is regarded as a promising candidate by many leaders in the party, made this statement:

"I had accepted the statement of President Coolidge at Rapid City as final and am not surprised at the reiteration of his decision."

While Dawes has insisted that he is not a candidate and has publicly declared himself for former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, a strong movement for the Vice President already is under way.

The announcement was hailed with joy in the Lowden camp, for it eliminated the most serious contender against the former governor. Although delegations from Iowa, Nebraska, Indiana, Missouri and Colorado and other states have waited upon Lowden at his Sinissippi farm in Illinois, urging him to make the race, the nearest thing to an announcement he has made was the declaration that "No man ever ran away from the Presidency."

Never neglect a sore throat.

Look upon it as a warning of an oncoming cold, or worse, and take definite steps to check it.

At the first sign of throat irritation, rinse the mouth and gargle with Listerine full strength. Do it several times a day. Many's the cold and sore throat that this simple precaution has nipped in the bud.

Listerine is antiseptic, and the moment it enters the mouth attacks the countless disease-producing bacteria that lodge there waiting till resistance is low to strike.

Sharp changes of temperature weaken resistance, and crowds pass bacteria along to thrive in stuffy homes and offices. So, during the winter months use Listerine every day for your own protection. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A motive which guided me in considering that Tellez should be consulted in this affair. I consider that to do it in any other manner would be to seek dissension among ourselves and ruin the whole plan.

I am confident that you will use good sense in this matter, putting personal feelings to one side, for only in that way can you attain the success you desire.

With a strong embrace, your brother who loves you closes, P. ELIAS CALLES.
(Hand-written)

Enmity Known

The existence of hard feelings between Ambassador Tellez and Senor Elias is well known in Mexico City. Each seeks to mold the policy of his government with respect to the United States, and neither, to date, has been wholly triumphant. Tellez, as ambassador, holds the higher position of the two rivals, but Elias handles much more money and has the additional advantage of close relationship to President Calles, who is his half-brother. This gives him the right to address the President directly, while communications from Ambassador Tellez ordinarily must pass through the Foreign Office.

Tellez has been attached to the Mexican Embassy in Washington for many years, rising to his ambassadorial rank from the position of first secretary, counsellor and minister, successively. He has led that Mexican school of thought which favors the handling of Mexican-American affairs through correct diplomatic procedure and direct dealings with the State Department, and opposes costly efforts to win over American public opinion to favor the Mexican government against that of its own country.

Elias Plotter

Senor Elias, on the other hand, has favored the free expenditure of Mexican funds for propaganda and other purposes of a secret character, as disclosed in correspondence exchanged between his financial agency in New York and high government officials in Mexico City. Letters published by the Hearst papers in preceding articles of this series have revealed the expenditure of $2,400,500 by Elias during the single year of 1926 for various secret ends.

Elias, therefore, knew that he could expect no support in his $1,200,000 scheme from Tellez, and wanted to leave him out of it. When overruled by Calles and informed that Tellez must be consulted and brought into line, he obeyed, and found the expected difficulties in winning the ambassador over.

Elias wrote to Aaron Saenz, Mexican Foreign Minister, complaining of the difficulties he had encountered and naming Tellez as the "greatest obstacle" to the scheme.

An unfriendly reference to the New England Puritanism of President Coolidge was contained in this letter. Elias wrote that he (Tellez) "probably has become infected with the Puritan atmosphere with which he is surrounded."

In his letter to the Mexican Foreign Minister, Elias predicted further opposition to the $1,200,000 scheme from Alberto J. Pani, secretary of the Mexican Treasury Department, who he wrote, "surely will entertain the same views as our bombastic ambassador." In this Elias was quite correct, for Secretary Pani held up the proposed transfer of funds for the completion of the scheme, for several weeks. He resigned later.

Rap at Coolidge

The Elias letter to Saenz was written July 1, 1926. Translated, it follows:

New York, N. Y.,
July 1, 1926.

Don Aaron Saenz,
Secretary of Foreign Relations,
Mexico, D. F.

My esteemed and fine friend:

This letter is written for the purpose of saluting you very affectionately and advising you that the affair which brought me to Mexico City last May has terminated satisfactorily for the interests of the country, and it is only necessary that the Treasury Department transfer to me the million two hundred thousand dollars needed to complete the transaction.

I must say to you that in this matter the greatest obstacle I encountered was our own Ambassador (Manuel C. Tellez), who probably has become infected with the Puritan atmosphere of New England, with which he is surrounded. He opposed himself resolutely to the operation in the form in which I had it arranged, alleging that the operation is extremely perilous and capable of bringing the present diplomatic relations to a worse state than that in which they are. According to his view, here in this country Mr. Kellogg is everything, and the important personalities in the Senate are only decorative figures in that which pertains to diplomatic relations with Mexico.

Bombastic Envoy

In closing I must say to you that I expect a new obstacle to the termination of this matter and that obstacle is Pani (Alberto J. Pani, Secretary of the Treasury), who surely will entertain the same view as our bombastic ambassador. But I confide in your diplomacy and in your ability to convince him that he should not place obstacles, and that he will permit the transfer of the funds without any difficulty, and in the form usual for the payment of interest on the public debt.

It is pleasing to me to sign myself as ever your affectionate and attentive friend and servant.

(Tomorrow The Sun-Telegraph will publish the text of official Mexican documents which show that an attempt was made by executives of that government to tamper with a high official of the United States Government.)

Querido hermano:

Tu telegrama cifrado de fecha de ayer, no lo contesté, por que creo importante tratar un asunto de tanta trascendencia en esta forma, principalmente lo que tratas en él.

Creo que cuando estuviste aquí, claramente te expliqué el motivo que me guía para considerar que Tellez debe ser consultado en este asunto, y considero que hacerlo de otra manera sería buscar entre uno mismo la discordia y la ruina del propio plan.

Confío en que has de usar en este asunto tu buen criterio dejando a un lado consideraciones personales, pues solo así podrás conseguir el éxito que deseas.

I did not answer your code telegram of yesterday (June 9, 1926) because I believe it inadvisable to treat an affair of such trancendence in this form.

I believe that when you were here I explained clearly to you the motive which guided me in considering that Tellez (Mexican Ambassador to the United States) should be consulted in this affair. WANTS TO QUIT HOME 'WAR'

Married life for Gregory Asby, Oakmont, was a continuity of flying pots, milk bottles and pans, interspersed with beatings with a poker, he alleged in testifying in his divorce case contested by his wife, Mary Asby.

Because he did not go into the Army during the World War, he told Judge George V. Moore, his wife called him a "Hun" and a coward. She also, he alleged, placed his best suit of clothes in the kitchen sink, poured water on it, and then smudged it with grease.

When they retired at night she'd place a furnace shaker under her pillow for his benefit, he declared. Mrs. Asby is contesting the divorce. Her husband's recital of "cruelties" frequently caused her to laugh.

Sonia Karloff From Denmark Proves to Be Jean Williams, American Girl From Follies

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.

IT HAS been proved again and again that ability never goes begging for any length of time in the movies. C. Gardner Sullivan, who furnished so many of those excellent ideas in the days when Tom Ince's pictures were at their zenith and who later supervised "White Gold" and "The Gigola," admittedly two of the best DeMille pictures, has signed with United Artists.

But wait a moment until I tell you the nature of his new U. A. job. He will be an associate producer and assistant to John Considine, who has been placed in full command of all United Artists production by no less a personage than Joseph Schenck. John is a wise man to surround himself with competent assistants. We all know a general is only as strong as his army.

And who else do you think is to be an associate producer and also assistant to Mr. Considine? Ted Reed, the youth Douglas Fairbanks found in Detroit and who has been Doug's right-hand man for so many, many years.

The amazing story of Sonia Karloff, born Jean Williams, reveals to what lengths this girl went to deceive the film company. She lived with a Danish family for four months learning Danish and acquiring an accent that was well-night perfect. Miss Karloff, between her tears, explained that she was on the point of starvation; that she couldn't get a job, and after she saw all the foreigners admitted she thought the one way would be to pose as a Danish actress. With Greta Garbo representing Sweden, Vilma Banky, Hungary; Pola Negri, Poland, and somebody else representing Germany, she felt that Denmark would be a wise choice. The irony of fate came when Cecil De Mille told her that if she were an American girl instead of a foreigner he would give her the lead in "The Godless Girl." Now, Mr. De Mille can prove that America means as much to him as Denmark, for he has signed her on a contract and certainly the girl's chance ought not to be taken away simply because she happens to be Jean Williams, a Follies girl, instead of a Danish actress.

With two stories all ready and waiting for Adolphe Menjou, you wouldn't thing Paramount would try and locate a third. Two should be an elegant sufficiency. But it's a switch of directors that brought this search about. When Harry D'Arrast sailed for Paris, "The Beauty Doctor" was handed Lothar Mendez, who, in addition to being Dorothy Mackaill's husband, is a well-known U. F. A. director. Now, it is decided to hold "The Beauty Doctor," which is a typical D'Arrast story, until Harry returns and to find something else for Mr. Mendez to direct. "Interference," an old-time melodrama, was discussed for a few days, but this is now held in abeyance as being too old-fashioned in treatment.

Dignity must be required in Emil Jannings' next leading lady in "The Patriot." At least, hearing that the stately Florence Vidor is the successful candidate, I assume there is no unscreening screen conduct. There was talk of several other very well-known actresses, but their type was more vivacious, less stately, and more animated. They tell me at Paramount no contract has been signed but at the moment it looks as if Miss Vidor will have the satisfaction of knowing that as a free lance player, she can get a return engagement with the company that did not renew her contract.

The title players have their breaks and their mishaps just the same as the players. One good picture usually gives them a job, while a bad one works the reverse. Garrett Graham finished the titles on "The Noose" and so pleased the powers-that-be at First National, who have been here for the last few weeks, that he was given a contract pronto. He will title six more for First National this coming season.

These "Fillum" executives certainly do love to travel in crowds. Today Adolph Zukor, S. R. Kent, Clifford Hawley, Richard Rowland and William Fraser, general manager of the Harold Lloyd Company, are traveling East on the Santa Fe. There will be some good card games and any enterprising reporter who wants to know who came out winner has only to study the faces of these men when they step off the train in Chicago.

During the long winter nights when Monte Blue is reciting stories of his best screen roles, his mother-in-law, Bodil Rosing, can offer a few yarns herself. Miss Rosing in "Sunrise" gave everyone a surprise. She knows her screen technique—make no mistake about that—and Monte and his pretty wife were delighted at the reception accorded her at the premier. Miss Rosing will probably now be in demand at the studios. It only takes one picture to raise the market value on a player. She has just finished a part in "The Whip Woman."

The Vidor baby—the infant daughter of King and Eleanor Boardman Vidor—has been tentatively titled "Mike." This is to give the baby's mother time to find a suitable name and to keep people from asking every day what the baby is to be called.

Slumbertime Confidences

Sally O'Neil and Molly O'Day appear to be telling one another pleasant dream tales. The scene is from "The Lovelorn," film adaptation of the Beatrice Fairfax serial of the same title now appearing in the Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers. The picture will be in Pittsburgh soon.

No More Films For Him, Says Bushman

By Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 7.—Francis X. Bushman, former idol of the screen, has announced his definite retirement from motion pictures.

"I am through with motion pictures, I shall never return to the screen," Bushman declared.

The actor said he is returning to his first love, the stage. He stated he has accepted an offer to make a vaudeville tour of the country on the Orpheum Circuit, opening his engagement in Los Angeles.

Bushman was crowned "king" of the films at the San Francisco Exposition. Soon afterward, he left films to star under Morosco's management on the stage. Later he went into vaudeville.

After six years away from pictures, Bushman returned to the screen in "Ben-Hur" two years ago. He is said to have appeared in nine productions during the past 16 months.

Sophisticated Role Is Dolores' Latest

For the first time in her screen career, Dolores Del Rio has a role of sophistication, in which she wears the costumes of modern Paris and portrays the life of a woman of social standing in the French capital. Her new picture, to be released by Fox Films in January, is titled "No Other Woman."

Lou Telegen was the director, and the supporting cast includes Don Alvarado, Ben Bard and Paulette Duval.

Heretofore, Miss Del Rio has been familiar in such colorful roles as Charmaine in "What Price Glory," the barmaid of Boureches during the war, and in "Loves of Carmen," as the exotic little courtesan who ruled the heart of a Spanish idol. In "No Other Woman" her talents are tested in another way.

MUSIC PUPILS TO GIVE EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

The Etude, Junior and Treble Cleff music clubs, comprised of pupils of Esther T. Kennedy, 22 Forbes Terrace, will give an educational program in honor of parents and friends the latter part of this month.

$10,000 Is Offered To Jawarski as Film Critic

Paul Jawarski is offered $10,000 in "cold cash" to act as a motion picture critic. Paul, you may remember, shot his way out of the Allegheny county jail. His chance to earn an honest $10,000 comes at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at a pre-view of "Underworld," in the Grand, where this photoplay will be shown next week. The offer to become a critic is made by Edward J. Wall of the Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation, producers of "Underworld." Previously, Mr. Wall had attempted to engage Sam Jawarski, brother of Paul, now in the county jail, to review the picture, under sufficient guard, but the county authorities seem to have a great deal of respect for the Jawarski variety of slipperiness, and they decided against any literary effort on his part.

Mr. Wall contends that the name of Jawarski never would have been mentioned in connection with crime had any of the brothers been able to see the consequences of criminality as pictured in "Underworld."

Exploding Bomb "Sorta Hurts" Actress

Louise Fazenda is plucky. The other day, whilst prancing across a "Tillie's Punctured Romance" battlefield, a bomb exploded too soon—on her foot.

Louise finished the action with W. C. Fields. Then she went up to director Eddie Sutherland:

"Wait a minute before you shoot the scene again—my foot sorta hurts."

"I'm surprised at you," said Eddie. "That isn't a long walk you're taking."

"Don't tease me." There were tears in her eyes. "My foot really hurts. It stings."

Eddie and the rest of the company nearby looked down at it. The heavy army boot Louise wore was torn. She sat down and they removed the shoe. At sight of the blood, Louise fainted.

The next day, however, she was back on the job with a bandaged foot. A piece of the bomb's metal had embedded itself in the ankle, but, fortunately, fractured no bones.

'THE ARK' SEATS IN DEMAND

Since "The Ark," starring Alice Brady, opened on Monday night in the Pitt Theater, a strong demand for tickets has been created. Entertainment is coupled with a timely theme, in "The Ark." An engagement in New York, it is said, will follow its Pittsburgh engagement. A matinee is to be held tomorrow.

Gertrude Lang, who plays the role of Mary Stillwell with Leon Errol in "Yours Truly," opening on Monday, December 12, in the Alvin Theater, studied for a career in grand opera only to wind up in light opera and musical comedy instead. At the age of 16 she was singing "Madame Butterfly" and "Mimi" when musical comedy caught her fancy.

Helen Carew, who appears in the spinster role of Agatha Bloom in the thrilling mystery play "Wooden Kimona," which will be the attraction at the Nixon next week, began her theatrical career on the Pacific Coast in stock, after which she appeared in the leading role of the "Bird of Paradise."

The Keith-Albee program booked for the Davis next week features Harry Beresford, well known legitimate comedian, presenting a humorous act. The screen feature will be "Two Girls Wanted," starring Janet Gaynor.

Lillian Gish Signs Contract With United Artists

By Universal Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Lillian Gish signed a two-year contract with Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, yesterday. Mr. Schenck announced that Miss Gish is under contract to the Art Cinema Corporation, financing organization which he heads, and that her pictures will henceforth be released by United Artists, for which company she made "Broken Blossoms," "Orphans of the Storm," "'Way Down East" and other films which gave her prominence as an emotional actress.

Miss Gish will make but one or two pictures a year, Mr. Schenck said, her first United Artists picture to be ready for release in September, 1928.

D. W. Griffith may direct Miss Gish's first picture under her new contract, Mr. Schenck added.

BURTON HOLMES TALK TO COVER ITALIAN CITIES

Burton Holmes will give a travel review in Carnegie Music Hall at 8:15 this evening, when he will present the fifth and last subject in his regular series, "The Heart of Italy." Mr. Holmes will cover cities that sit upon the Umbrian hill-tops—Urbino, Gubbio, Perugia, Assisi, Orvieto and the rest. Next Wednesday evening he will give an extra travel review, "Switzerland in Summer and Winter."

Jazz King

PAUL WHITEMAN

Mr. Whiteman is bringing his orchestra of 30 to the Penn next week, at a cost said to exceed that of any single act ever presented. His tour of the Loew circuit will cover 10 weeks. Mr. Whiteman's program will include George Getshwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

TRIANGLE CLUB COMING HERE ON DECEMBER 23

The Princeton University Triangle Club will present its new comic opera, "Napoleon Passes," in the Syria Mosque December 23. This club will begin a tour of 18 cities on December 14. A special train has been chartered to carry the members.

Lewis Stone Loaned For Newspaper Photoplay

Universal officials are doing considerable borrowing for their newspaper story. First they persuaded First National to loan them Lewis Stone and now they have negotiated with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for Marceline Day, with the result that the outstanding two characters in "Freedom of the Press" are borrowed players.

SUPER-ALCOHOL CURES HIT

By Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Striking hard at lavishly alcoholic "medicines" and "extracts" flooding the Southwest, the Department of Justice has announced that they involve "millions of dollars worth of business" in Texas alone.

Large seizures have been made, and indictments have been returned against dealers in Oklahoma, Louisiana, Missouri, Virginia and New York City, the department said.

One medicine, which the Oklahoma Indians swore by, was made of ginger, orange peel, vanilla and 65 per cent alcohol. The ginger solidified the mixture, was strained off by the buyer, and presto!

And when you see these chairs you can well appreciate the tremendous vogue of needlepoint to-day!

No Two Chairs in This Purchase Are Alike, Except in Their Conquering Beauty!

Each chair is an entity—the result of thousans of patient stitches—and being hand-made, different from its neighbor. Brooks' Daring Proposal Considered by Georgie, Seems Convincing

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann and Georgie Hastings, sisters, live together in Mrs. O'Leary's boarding house. Ann, the elder, works in a factory and Georgie in an insurance office. Ann is proud of her sister's good looks and charming manners and pleads with her to accept the attentions of Bill Warren, who is madly in love with her, and to have nothing more to do with Ernest Brooks, a chance acquaintance who has been rushing her. Bill makes a confidant of Ann and proposes to Georgie, who refuses him. Ann's solicitude for her sister ends in a quarrel between the two, and Ann becomes conscious that she herself is fond of Bill, and the day after the quarrel he asks her to have lunch with him. During lunch he shows he is still devoted to Georgie, and Ann asks him why he doesn't call on her sister that evening. Bill comes to the boarding house and after waiting for Georgie sees her arrive with Ernest. Georgie vindictively tells Bill she doesn't care if she never sees him again, and in desperation he turns to Ann and asks her if she would be willing to go out with him now and then. Ann discovers that Bill has been drinking and shows her great disappointment in him, but resolves to do all she can to help him. Meanwhile Georgie, in a spirit of adventure, goes to call on Ernest in his studios. He proposes a trip abroad with her, promising to marry her when they get to Italy. Georgie leaves his studio, telling him that was impossible.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"BUT listen, Ann, I don't get you. I don't know just what you mean."

Oh he was blind, blind not to take her in his arms. Why wouldn't he do that at least. Then she would tell him, then she would pour out her undying faith in him, her eternity of love, her will to comfort him and make him happy.

But she couldn't tell him these things now, like this, while he stared at her, incredulously, doubting his eyes. She took the last desperate step. She said in a whisper:

"I want you to like me."

"You want me to like you?" He was still staring, still looking at her in amazement, in utter disbelief.

His gaze held her, but it held her for one instant too long. Suddenly she felt she had cheapened herself, and she despised him for having been the cause of it, despised him and her own traitorous heart.

She got up swiftly, she heard him call to her, but she was hurrying as if her life depended on it. Her senses seemed to swim in a mist. The next moment she was out of the gates, and had pushed her way through the crowd. She was afraid he would find her, catch up to her, but when she reached home at last and realized that now he couldn't, her heart was like lead.

She began to sob even as she undressed. She was still crying, with her head buried in her pillow, when she heard Georgie's step on the stairs. Then she stifled her sobs, and lay pretending she was asleep, as Georgie softly opened the door and tiptoed into the room.

CHAPTER XXI.

FOR Georgie the evening had been equally full. All that afternoon she had thought of one thing only.

Ernest Brooks had offered the chance for color and excitement and a new fascinating life.

She thought of him with closed eyes as she sat at her desk. A smile touched her mouth. He was good-looking, distinguished, interesting. She'd be proud of anyone like that. She must be in love with him, or else how could she admire him so much?

And yet perhaps she wasn't in love at all, or she wouldn't hesitate like this. Of course his demand was a strange one, but then he meant what he said. And he was right; things were different today. Girls did what they wanted, had love affairs, and no one thought any the worse of them.

Besides he was going to marry her. He wanted his own way and he wanted to shock Ann. Why did he hate Ann so much? A wave of tenderness swept over her. How mean she had been to Ann. Well, she'd make it up to her some day. She'd make her rich and invite her to wonderful parties and give her lovely things—the first moment she herself was rich, the very first moment.

Then her thoughts returned to Ernest again. She would certainly see him this evening. She would show she wasn't old-fashioned and frightened. There! the decision was made.

But five minutes later she was as much in doubt as ever. Then she decided that since she hesitated like this, she probably wasn't actually in love with Ernest at all. Her mind turned in the opposite direction. She would never see him again.

And then she began thinking about him, wondering, repeating everything she had thought before. . . . .

So in the end she was just as far from knowing her mind as she had been at the start. She gave up trying to settle the thing one way or the other. She'd go to Rivard's anyway, but she wouldn't really make up her mind, not until she could be sure.

And all at once she thought of all the stories she had read, the romantic stories in which everything was so clear, and there were never two courses to choose between. When she realized how she was hesitating, she felt cold-blooded, even harsh.

She stayed in the office late, promising to look up, and explaining that she wanted to copy two long leases that she had still to do.

But when everyone was gone, she put the leases away. Going to the windows, she looked out on the crowds that were hurrying homewards. She stood lost in thought until the darkness crept on.

She would have liked to have gone home and changed her things. But Ann would be there, and would make her feel uncomfortable with her slow, studying glance. No, this way was better.

She made up with great care, and then noticing the time sauntered out in the direction of Rivard's.

It was not far from the office, but it was already quite late. If Ernest were there, he had probably given her up. She was startled and a little pleased when on turning the corner she saw him coming from the opposite direction. Apparently he had been strolling up and down, while anxiously waiting for her.

The way his face lighted up at the sight of her! He took her hands in his, smiled at her.

"So you came!" he whispered. "Why, I don't know what I'd have done if you hadn't. I'm crazy about you, Georgie. But I guess you know that by this time."

The ardor in his voice warmed her, made her feel confident and glowing. She entered the restaurant. The next instant her eyes fell upon Ann and Bill Warren.

She looked away quickly, feeling that her face was burning, and the reason why she had come here was somehow revealed to them.

Ernest Brooks gave a little mutter of annoyance, and sitting down at the small table, looked at her almost suspiciously.

"Is this a put-up job?" he demanded. "Did you tell that sweet sister of yours we were coming here tonight."

"Of course I didn't. Do you think I wanted her to see me here? Oh, stop frowning, Ernest, please. Talk, say something, don't let them see we've seen them. Oh, why did you ask me to come here?"

But he was frowning still. "Well, she's looking away herself. She's about as anxious to see you as you are to see her!"

The warmth that his greeting had given her died abruptly. She didn't like him now. His face seemed unattractive, when he sneered. And she felt guilty. Alone, it was easy to think herself modern and reckless. But Ann's presence made her see herself in another light.

At that moment she wondered why she had even wanted to see Ernest Brooks again. She would tell him what he asked was impossible. If—marry her right away—well, that would be different. But go away with him to Italy first—never!

She ordered without knowing what she was ordering. Then all at once she looked up to see Ann and Bill Warren going out. They'd hurried away—tried to get away quickly.

As the door revolved behind them, she felt miserable and forsaken. She wanted, now that it was too late, to hurry after them, ask them to come back and sit down.

But Ernest was smiling once more. "I feel better now," he declared.

Her eyes explored his face as if she had never seen it before. How could she have thought for a moment of going away with him! Why that had been an absolutely crazy idea!

But she had come here, she had met him, as he asked. Now he was thinking that she had given in and agreed.

How was she to tell him? If he'd only touch her hand, try to make love to her, she could show him then that this was just saying goodby to him.

But he was studying her with his clear, watchful eyes, and his instinct was guiding him. He felt her mood. He was as casual with her as if she had been a mere acquaintance.

There were awkward pauses in their talk. She felt uncomfortable and irritable. He was forcing her to say the thing right out, he was giving her no chance to do it gracefully.

If he'd only broach the subject, talk to her about Italy again, speak of Ann. But he avoided any mention of these things.

She said at last, abruptly:

"Ernest, I ought to explain. I didn't come here tonight because I—I decided to go away with you. I came here to tell you I can't do that."

He looked at her calmly. "I suspected that," he said. "Well, I'm not surprised."

"Then everything's all right."

"Yes," he went on, as if she had not spoken. "I knew you didn't have the nerve. I knew you'd get cold feet and back out."

"I'm not afraid!"

"No, of course not!" He laughed unpleasantly. "Why, if you went back to my studio with me tonight, you'd burst out crying. You're just a scared kid."

She was angry now. "You think you know me, don't you?"

"Sure I know you. Want to come back to my studio with me?"

She weighed the challenge deliberately.

"Oh, I don't mind," she said with a scornful laugh.

CHAPTER XXII.

IN THE lower hall, with its high ceilings and bare walls, a single light glowed dimly. The cage of the elevator, as large as that of a freight elevator, was empty.

Ernest glanced around grimly. "We'll have to walk up," he muttered. "That fellow's down in the cellar shooting craps again. Come on—it's only three flights."

The steps were of stone, and a

THINK HE IS WITH WOMAN

Mrs. Helen Fitzpatrick was near collapse today as the search continued for her husband, John Fitzpatrick, whose hat and coat were found on the brink of Niagara Falls after he had sent letters to his wife and father telling them of his intention to end his life.

That Fitzpatrick, instead of committing suicide, started on a trip through Canada and then into New York state with a woman who formerly worked in Fitzpatrick's office in Cincinnati, is believed likely by City Detective Patrick Moran, who has undertaken the investigation here for Mrs. Fitzpatrick.

The mental strain has been too much for the wife during the last few weeks since she received the death threat. She is making her home with Mrs. R. S. Carson, 418 Lincoln avenue, and her only solace is her two babies, Jack, 4½, and Bobby, 3. It is for their sake that she wants her husband to return, she says. "Even if he didn't end his life as he threatened, and though he may be with another woman, I want him back. I still love him and always will," said Mrs. Fitzpatrick.

HENRY M. ROBINSON

How'd you like to be able calmly to refuse a $200,000 bequest? As, for instance, Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles financier, did. It was revealed when the will of the late Judge Elliott M. Wilson, of San Francisco, was admitted to probate. I had intended "read the will of Judge Wilson," to bequeath to my good friend and executor, Henry M. Robinson, the 20 per cent of my estate that I have willed to the California Institute of Technology. But when Henry and I talked it over across the dinner table, he positively refused to permit me to leave him anything but my affection and trust.

Lacking Toys, Many Give Mission Funds

Not all the friends of the Toy Mission have used toys to give, but they are assisting in a practical way in the work of making poor children happy. A donation of money to buy new toys goes just as far as a gift of discarded books, dolls or other playthings.

Two women contributors—employed girls—sent cash donations to the Sun-Tele Auxiliary, and the money was turned over immediately to the Mission. "M. H." sent $1, and "Some One" gave $2 to the fund.

"We are grateful for these cash gifts," said Manager George L. Bond, of the mission. "The money will be used in the purchase of gifts most needed, and will supply some wants which are not cared for in the ordinary donations of toys. The mission aims to buy new toys, and to use the money to the best possible advantage. Many toys, rather than expensive ones, is our motto when we go shopping with money donated for this purpose. All persons who send cash are assured that the money will be used wisely and with economy."

All cash contributions to the Sun-Tele Auxiliary will be acknowledged and turned over to the mission on the day received. In the meantime, gifts of toys may be given to any trolley conductor, or left with Sun-Tele agencies listed below.

Probe Tale Of Auto Dearth

An investigation to fix responsibility for the story that city police have only one dilapidated "flivver" in which to chase bandits has been begun by Public Safety Director James M. Clark.

Grilled by members of Council yesterday, Clark declared that 10 high-powered automobiles had been furnished his department, and denied all responsibility for the story.

"If you can't find out who in your own department is responsible for the story, I don't see how we can expect you to catch any thieves," remarked Councilman John S. Herron in the course of the inquiry.

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith, following Clark, admitted that a fire truck had been wrecked while it was being taken from a repair shop, where it had been sent after an earlier crash. The driver, he said, had blamed the second crash on defective brakes, and had been fined $5 and suspended for five days.

In the course of the hearing, Charles Anderson, chairman of Council's Public Safety Committee, disclaimed all responsibility for the work of the department.

"The chairman of your Public Safety Committee has never been consulted by the department," he said. "I'm not responsible for anything done by that department."

Clark declared that all of the automobiles in his department are "in good shape."

Brooks' Daring Proposal Considered by Georgie, Seems Convincing

lattice work of iron walled the stairway. Georgie's breath was coming with difficulty. Somehow she felt uneasy. She regretted now the pride and folly with which she had taken up his challenge. It was so dark here, so gloomy and echoing.

Then she laughed at herself. As if she were afraid of Ernest Brooks—afraid of him! Why the only harm in coming here was that she was simply putting off the moment when she would have to say good-by.

He opened his door, and lighted the lamps in the studio. The pale yellow glow softened everything now, but did not penetrate far. She could scarcely make out the ceilings in the blackness. The easel in the corner had assumed fantastic outlines.

"Wait here a minute. I'll get something to drink."

He moved away, and she heard him in the kitchenette, heard him cracking ice, collecting glasses. He came back presently with a tray and two tall highballs.

Georgie didn't care for liquor. She hated the taste, but she liked to pretend she was modern and easy and natural. She liked too the confidence that alcohol gave her. She sipped hers and make a face. It seemed to her stronger than anything he had offered her before. It burned her throat a little.

She was sitting on the broad couch that was heaped with pillows, her legs stretched straight before her, her back against the wall. He would of course come over and sit next to her, take her hand, touch her hair, kiss her throat. And she would tell him calmly, with a quietly sophisticated smile, that it was all quite useless.

But Ernest Brooks did nothing of the sort. He sat down in a battered Morris chair, resting his highball on the arm of it. He seemed to have no inclination to bother her, make love to her. He gave her no chance to show him she didn't care a bit.

He was talking quietly, talking about Italy, about old world cities, about olive trees and blue water and bluer skies.

"I'd like to take a house for a while. Servants are cheap. Of course the food gets monotonous, but it's good. Three or four months of that and then Paris. You'd like Paris—everyone does."

Georgie was lost in a dream. The highball had softened her mood. She indulged herself in fantasy. She saw herself for a moment living an idyll by the blue sea, and afterwards a great city, with beautiful clothes, wonderful things to do and see, no more flat, monotonous toil, but an eternity of pleasure and luxury. A faint smile touched her mouth. And Ernest Brooks, his eyes shaded by his hand, was watching her intently.

It was as she smiled that he rose swiftly, went over to her, and caught her hands. Instinctively she rebelled, coming out of her mood and her dream with startling suddenness into the soberness of reality.

But pleading with her, he found the right words—the words she could not resist.

"At least Georgie, you'll say goodby. Because this is goodby, isn't it? We've had some great times together, haven't we? It's a shame we can't have any more of them."

Goodby—oh, could she say that to him? After all he was the only man she had ever met who had a real fascination for her. She clung to him now as if she were clinging to youth and to her perishable prettiness.

"Ernest, I'm sorry—I'm sorry—you don't know—"

"But why do you have to be? I love you—and you don't hate me. You've shown me that. Why are you afraid?"

"Because," she said with sudden illumination, "you don't really love me."

"What do you mean? Haven't I shown it—every way I can?"

"Every way you can?" She laughed, released herself from his arms. "Why, Ernest, if you were really—really in love with me—you'd want to marry me right now. You know you would."

He turned his back, walked away from her with short angry steps.

"It's hard to explain, I guess," he said at last. "You just can't get things straight. Listen! I'll try to tell you. I've seen men marry women who didn't care a rap about them. Well, I don't want to be one of them—I'm not going to be one of them. I'm going to talk straight out—whether you like it or not. I've got a little money—I live a good life.

"Practically speaking, I'm not a bad chance for you. Ordinarily you'd marry the bookkeeper, or the boss' secretary. Well, I'm better than that anyway! How do I know you love me? Just one way. By finding out if you're willing to take a chance—and it is a chance!—by finding out if you're willing to live with me—if you care enough for that. That's the only thing that would convince me."

"But I know whether I love you or not."

"Then you don't love me."

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" — By Adele Garrison

MR. VERITZEN laughed with apparently unconcerned gayety at Lillian's gibe that he was as curious as she concerning my queer new neighbors, the tenants of The Larches. But there was a note in the laughter which struck a response in the intuition which is generally counted a feminine prerogative. It told me that while Lillian's curiosity concerning the Lincoln's was an ephemeral thing, having its origin in her admiration of The Larches, and her fantastic wish to own it, Philip Veritzen's interest lay deeper.

That inwardly he was quite excited about the account of my new neighbors he had asked me to give, I was quite sure. Whether his interest was rooted in his knowledge that he was of Transvanian birth himself—something that he patently did not intend to reveal to us—or whether it lay in something else, I could not tell, but I had an odd little conviction that he expected some definite bit of information from the story I was about to tell.

Another conviction came to me, that I must tell this story more carefully than if it were the casual description of the new tenants of The Larches for which Lillian had asked. I must be careful to be accurate, to exaggerate nothing. On the other hand, I must not slur any part of my tale. Just why I felt this, I could not tell, but a certain little intuitive warning bell was sounding deep in my consciousness. It is a warning many odd, almost eerie happenings have trained me always to heed, and I realized that I could not give this account of our experiences with our new neighbors until I had more time to marshal the incidents of the story in my mind, and be very sure that I had omitted nothing.

"Your attack of curiosity won't prove fatal if unappeased for two or three hours more, will it?" I asked, at the same time giving her a much-used tiny private signal of our own which meant "delay the game."

She played up to my cue promptly.

"Just so I get the low down on it all, finally, I don't mind waiting a bit," she said.

I turned to Philip Veritzen with a deprecatory little smile.

"It has been so long since I have seen these hills," I said, "that I hate to waste time talking. Don't you think the story of my new neighbors would make a good dinner-table talk?"

Over his face flashed a look of courteous concern.

"Oh, I'm sorry we've spoiled your enjoyment of the view," he said.

"You haven't," I assured him earnestly. "I've been rude enough to keep my eyes fixed on the countryside most of the time. But I know I can't tell this story and look at the hills, too. It's too long and they're too entrancing."

"Then we'll have it as a condiment for the dinner," he said. "Which reminds me."

He took the speaking tube down with an excuse to us and spoke into it.

"At the next convenient place for telephoning, Otto, draw up the car. I want to send a message.

The man did not turn his eyes away from the road ahead, but his right hand went up in a swift, smart salute, and at the next village he drew up the car before a well-appointed drug store with a telephone booth sign prominently displayed.

"May I get either of you an ice or a soda?" our host asked as he descended from the car. "I am going to order our dinner to be ready for serving in an hour from now. That leaves time for the changing of a tire. There is no other probable delay."

"Are you asking us to spoil one of your dinners with a soda, Phil Veritzen?" Lillian demanded. "We haven't taken leave of our senses if you have."

He laughed and walked into the drug store. As the door closed behind him, Lillian cast a cautious glance at Otto's back.

"Why did you give me the 'high sign' just now?" she asked.

AFTER PERIOD OF TORTURE, MAN FINDS RELIEF FROM ITCHING

Skin now entirely healed

Charlestown (Boston), Mass., Dec. 18:—"Last June I had an itching irritation on my back, principally between the shoulders, and also on the back of my hands, extending to the shoulders. The skin was apparently clear of any disorder, but the itching was intense. After a vigorous rubbing with a Turkish towel there would appear two spots, about an inch apart, which bled from the effects of the rubbing. I used Bay Rum and other lotions before I tried your Resinol Ointment. At bedtime my back received a thorough washing with Resinol Soap and a very generous application of Ointment, after which I would rest quite comfortably until about two or three in the morning, when I received another application. A third upon arising would be enough to make me feel at ease during the day. Thanks to the above treatment, the trouble is now entirely healed." (Signed) John John W. Matthews, 1 Crystal Place.

Which to Choose?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WHICH shall I choose?" This question, expressed in various ways, is asked by numerous girls who write to me.

Both "Brownie" and "Worried," in letters from widely-distant states of the Union, explain the difficulty of making a choice.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes Brownie, "I am coming to you with a problem I am unable to solve.

"At present I am going with two young men. The first I shall call Arthur. I have been going steadily with him for nine months. He is a very fine man. I haven't a single fault to find with him. But I do not love him—I only like him. He tells me he loves me very much and does not want to part with me.

"I'm not quite sure whether I love Bob. He is also very nice, but his past worries me. He worked in a circus and a carnival for a number of years.

"People tell me that any one connected with a circus or carnival is 'no good.' But he is very good to me and seems to love me sincerely. So I am doubtful as to whether I should accept his love, or drop him and continue to go with Arthur, whom I do not love. I am patiently awaiting your advice and I thank you in advance. BROWNIE."

Before considering Brownie's problem, let us hear what Worried has to say on the same subject. By the way, this subject may seem trivial, but it is vitally important because it concerns the friendships and courtships that lead directly or indirectly to the choice of a lifemate. And on the wise choice of a mate depends the happiness and success of marriage, hence of men and women.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes my second correspondent, "Please help me solve my problem. I have been going with Jack for nine months. There is only one fault I find with him—he is very quiet. He doesn't talk much. He's very good looking.

"Not long ago, I met another boy whom I shall call Dick. I stopped going with Jack and started going with Dick.

"Now I realize that I don't care as much for Dick as I did for Jack.

"Do you suppose I could win Jack back again? What shall I tell Dick? Jack and I are seniors in high school. Dick is working. Please tell me how to straighten out this tangle."

It is much easier to avoid tangles than to straighten them out, my dear.

My first correspondent is wiser than you are, Worried. For she has kept both of her admirers for friends and has gone about with both, comparing them with each other, studying them both, and at the same time enjoying their companionship and friendship. Both young men are sufficiently fond of her to be proud of the friendship.

And it may be that each hopes in time to prove the lucky man.

Brownie is not trusting to snap judgment in making her choice. She has thought about the qualifications and background of both young men. The man she most desires, she does not love as yet. But she is giving love a chance.

There is no hurry about choosing between friends, Brownie. In fact, there should not be a necessity for choice until one or both young men propose marriage. Even then, take time to decide. Do not trust entirely to impulse and make what may prove a tragic mistake.

May I correct an error in the information you have received? While there are, of course, many worthless hangers-on about carnivals and circuses, yet many of the old circus families are of fine character and standing.

The man who goes into the cage of wild beasts each day, the athlete who swings from the high trapeze, must exercise iron self-control and refuse every temptation to dissipate. There is much of beautiful family life among circus folk. So do not condemn your friend on that ground until you are sure. As for Worried, who has rudely thrown aside one young man for another and now wishes to win him back again, let us hope she will learn to treat her friends loyally and sanely.

Possibly the young man you like so well will generously give you another chance, Worried. Why not keep both for friends? You need not drop the acquaintance of all the young men you know the moment you feel yourself becoming infatuated with one.

A girl with a wide circle of dependable, fine, worth-while friends, both young men and other girls, is a girl who is likely to choose wisely and sanely the man who will make her supremely happy as his wife.

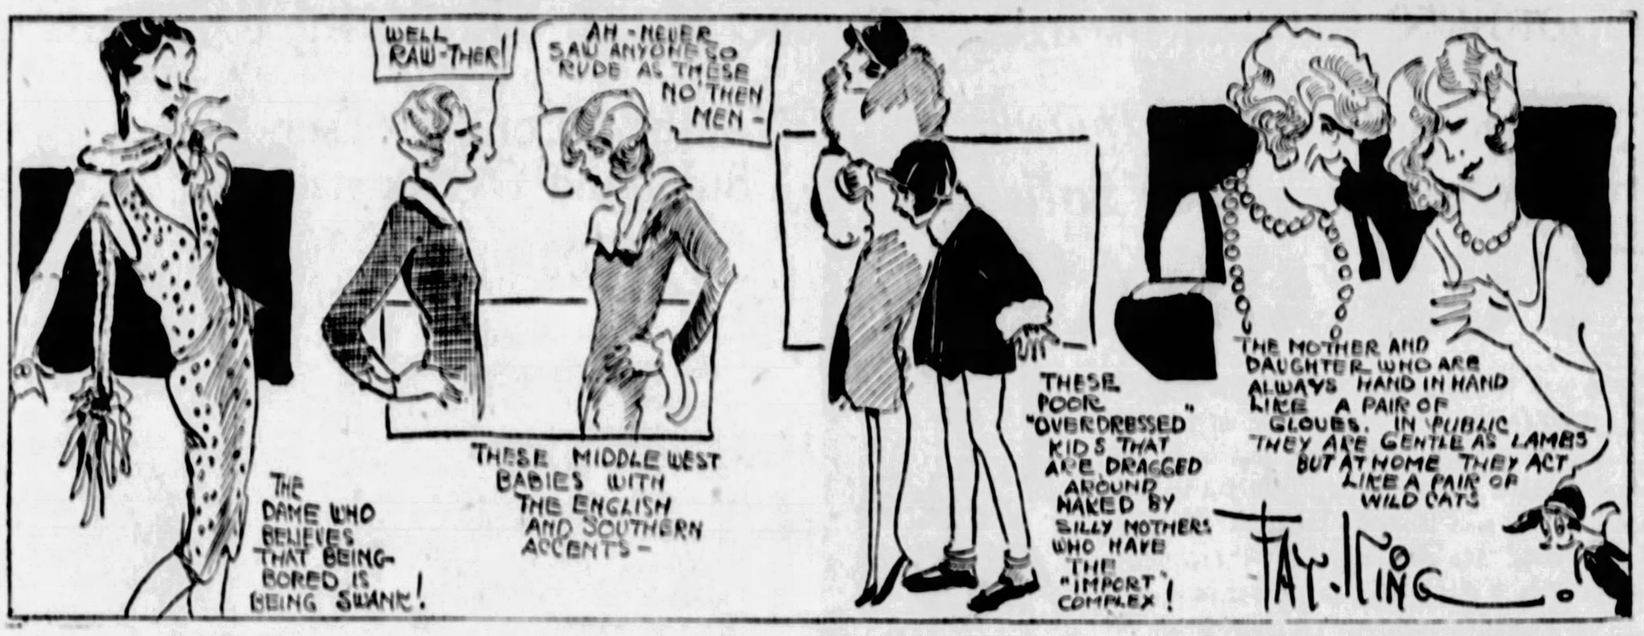
Picture Peoples' Poses Exposed by Fay King



WELL RAW-THER!
AH-NEVER SAW ANYONE SO RUDE AS THESE NO'THEN MEN-
THE DAME WHO BELIEVES THAT BEING-BORED IS BEING SWANK!
THESE MIDDLE WEST BABIES WITH THE ENGLISH AND SOUTHERN ACCENTS-
THESE POOR "OVERDRESSED" KIDS THAT ARE DRAGGED AROUND NAKED BY SILLY MOTHERS WHO HAVE THE "IMPORT" COMPLEX!
THE MOTHER AND DAUGHTER WHO ARE ALWAYS HAND IN HAND LIKE A PAIR OF GLOVES. IN PUBLIC THEY ARE GENTLE AS LAMBS BUT AT HOME THEY ACT LIKE A PAIR OF WILD CATS
FAY KING

By FAY KING.

ALL "picture people" are not in the movies!

We all know persons who have public poses and therefore seem to me to be "picture people."

There are the mother and daughter who are continually entwined like ivy in public. They are forever spouting words of affection! Momsie is so wrapped up in Dotsie. Dotsie is so devoted to Momsie!

Other daughters feel they have missed much not having a mother like Momsie.

But if they could ever see Momsie and Dotsie at home, privately indulging in a battle royal they would realize that Momsie and Dotsie, are just "picture people!"

Then there is the perfectly posey Mrs. So-and-So. She craves to be considered a "society queen." Her idea of the ultra-ultras is looking bored to death and throwing her little fingers out of joint!

She speaks in muffled monotones and arches her eyebrows! She never laughs when she should, and always smiles when she shouldn't, thereby conveying her superior conception of common occurrences!

And then these girls with English accents. And Southern accents! They developed them soon after leaving their small Middle West home towns.

The "Southern" beauty is continually comparing the "No'then" men to the Southern men with a decided prejudice against the No'then men. Not knowing any Southern men, I think this is very unfair.

The other dame hasn't even been to New England!

The married couple who are so indulgent in front of company. Hubby offers wifie a sable coat during a dinner party and wifie refuses to accept it, much to the astonishment of their friends.

It's all just the plot of their "picture."

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THE MODERN STAR-GAZER

Starring down her figure—jacking up her face!
Woman's surely running Time a merry race!

THE most thrilling surprise that any girl could give a man for Christmas, these days, would probably be an awkward, amateurish kiss.

* * *

Nothing is so maddening to a man as a woman who insists on "forgiving" him, when he doesn't WANT to be forgiven—but just forgotten!

HELEN ROWLAND

A man's heart is constantly being torn between two women; one who is a "habit" that he simply can't give up—and one who is a novelty, that he simply can't resist.

Every woman is an idealist, forever seeking the Perfect Lover—and forever burning incense before a succession of idols of clay.

One of the greatest mysteries of this life is where the average man acquired his astonishing lack of knowledge of women, and his amazing accuracy in always picking the one who will make him most unhappy.

* * *

Many a woman never realizes how bitterly she has "suffered," until she hears a good divorce lawyer telling the court about it.

Opening a can and giving the contents a couple of electric shocks is the modern girl's idea of "cooking"—but, at that, it's hardly more sketchy than the modern man's idea of love-making.

MANY LOVES MAKE A LIGHT HEART

Why do you sigh, Beloved?
You chose the wiser part.
Go, light your little bonfires
To warm an empty heart.

* * *

Oh, wise you are, Beloved—
Light loves are safer, far!
But, I've no heart for bonfires,
Who have beheld a star!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

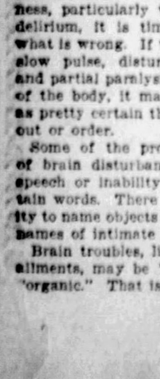
U.S. Senator From New York

Giving the Brain a Fair Chance to Operate

PRESIDING over the thoughts, the movements and the welfare of man is that crowning gift of the Creator, the human brain.



DR COPELAND

Without the brain, were life possible, it would be no more than what may be called the "life" of a machine, or the "life" of a mechanical toy. Voluntary acts would be impossible.

Like all the rest of our organs the brain performs its functions quietly, faithfully and without our conscious knowledge. That is the way every organ should operate.

Unfortunately, the brain may become disturbed. Then it makes its troubles felt in unpleasant ways.

What are some of the symptoms of brain irritation?

There are a lot of them: Headache, sense of fullness in the head, roaring in the ears, dizziness, sickness at the stomach and vomiting, sensitiveness to light, tenderness of the scalp, discomfort in the head when walking or otherwise jarring the body, inability to sleep, irritable temper, stiffness of the neck, delirium.

Of course you may have one or more of these symptoms and yet have a perfectly normal brain. You may have a disturbed brain, with one or more of these symptoms and yet have nothing serious to worry over.

But where there are headache, restlessness, sleeplessness, bad dreams, mental confusion or dullness, particularly with stupor or delirium, it is time to find out what is wrong. If there should be slow pulse, disturbed breathing and partial paralysis of some part of the body, it may be set down as pretty certain that the brain is out or order.

Some of the pronounced signs of brain disturbance are loss of speech or inability to speak certain words. There may be inability to name objects or to recall the names of intimate friends.

Brain troubles, like many other ailments, may be "functional" or "organic." That is, there may be no actual disease of the brain, but for some reason or other the brain won't function as it should. An organic trouble is one where there is actual disease or physical disturbance of the brain or some part of it.

The surest way to avoid brain trouble is to live right. In the first place, that organ must be well nourished. It cannot be unless there is a regular supply of the right sorts of food.

We are inclined to think of food as something to keep the muscles and flesh in good condition. But it must do much more than this. It must supply nourishment to the bones, the heart, the lungs, the liver and all the rest of the organs and structures of the body. Particularly it must keep the brain in perfect condition.

There must be plenty of rest and sleep to give the brain a chance to recuperate. Exercise is needed to stimulate the heart and blood vessels. The blood must be sent in forceful streams to cleanse and purify the brain cells. The eliminative organs must carry away the poisons to avoid poisoning of the sensitive tissues of the brain.

By right living, right eating and practicing the ordinary rules of hygiene the brain will share good health and vigor, along with all the rest of the body.

Answers to Health Queries

M. G. Q.—How can I gain weight?

A—Proper diet and deep breathing are essential. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

W. B. Q.—What is good for aching and inflamed eyes?

A.—Consult an eye specialist for examination.

M. R. Q.—Is there anything you can suggest to make the teet white? My teeth are yellow, although I take the best of care of them.

A.—Many persons have naturally yellow teeth, all teeth are not pure white. If your teeth are solid and in good condition the color will be of little significance.

Grace and Symmetry

By MARIA JERITZA,
Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

IN THIS day of knee-length frocks and one-piece bathing suits it is of paramount importance to the woman who values her appearance to see to it that her ankles, feet and lower limbs are symmetrical and graceful.

But even though the mode of the longer skirt should sweep over the world of fashion, the woman who values her beauty would continue her efforts for perfect loveliness of body. Beauty is worth while for its own sake, even though it may not be on dress parade.

The average modern woman makes one mistake, which seriously coupts against the shapeliness of her lower limbs and may injure her health. She has the habit of crossing her legs. Some exponents of evolution claim that dislike of balancing both feet firmly on the ground, indicated by this habit, is a trait we inherit from monkey ancestors, since monkeys are happiest when balanced precariously on a high bough of a tree. Needless to say, this theory is not substantiated. But the fact remains that sitting with crossed legs, favorite position of the flapper, interferes with circulation of blood through the lower limbs and causes bunchy, flabby knees.

Still more serious, according to medical authorities, curvature of the spine is sometimes caused by this habit. It is equally comfortable, and far more graceful as well as less harmful to the spine, to sit with your feet crossed at the ankles and both feet on the floor.

Aside from walking, which is the best all-around exercise there is, kicking is possibly the best means of bringing grace and symmetry to the hips, thighs, lower back, knees, calves and ankles.

Kicking exercises as taught in the first six months of ballet dancing add curves to scrawny legs and reduce to symmetry those that are too large.

In practicing kicking it is well to balance yourself by holding onto a mantel or the back of a chair, with one outstretched arm. Stand straight with your spine and neck erect, your chest high, your weight over the balls of your feet. Kick with your toes pointed, your knees straight, as high as you can directly in front of you, ten times with the right, ten times with the left leg, each day, to slenderize your waist and abdomen.

Kick straight backward in the same way, to bring symmetry to your lower back and thighs. The side kick with feet pointed straight ahead is a marvelous help in reducing the hips, when practiced faithfully ten or more times with each leg each day.

"Electricity!—The Master of Mass Production"

Says Dr. Henry Mace Payne
Consulting Engineer, American Mining Congress

"America's prosperity is the fruit of intelligent power development, with skilled direction and mass production, paying the highest wages in the world, her workmen enjoying a higher standard of living than ever before. Wherever we look about us we find the evidences of the co-partnership between brains and business."†

ELECTRIC power may rightfully be regarded as one of the world's basic industries. It is mankind's most tireless and efficient servant.

By means of its magic current, forces are unleashed that free labor from excessive burden; homes are made happier and more comfortable, and the wealth of the nation multiplied many times over.

The wealth is that not taken from others by trade, but new wealth, wrung from the treasure house of science, enhancing individual production capacity forty fold and increasing wages proportionately.

It is obvious, therefore, that the well-being of everyone depends upon the accessibility and abundance of electric power.

Through the foresight, initiative and commercial daring of the electric power companies of this country, American industry today is supplied with more power than all the rest of the world combined—twenty-four times more power than was available twenty-four years ago—and at a cost less than the pre-war price.

To the degree that the principle of individual initiative, under which these companies have functioned is maintained, will the continued prosperity of the nation as a whole be assured.

KEEN INTEREST HERE IN VOTE MACHINES

Requests for information concerning voting machines coming from civic and commercial bodies, women's clubs and church organizations bear witness to the interest that has been aroused in the subject by The Sun-Telegraph's series of articles dealing with it. The citizens of Pennsylvania are to pass at the next general election on a constitutional amendment authorizing the use of voting machines, and are evincing a desire to learn the arguments for and against the devices.

Mrs. Lula Mosby of 6367 Jackson street, who has been demonstrating voting machines and lecturing about them for five years, said today that she had received invitations to talk to the Allied Boards of Trade, the Chamber of Commerce, the Eighteenth Ward Board of Trade, the Daughters of America, the Seventh Ward League of Women Voters, the Altoona League of Women Voters, the Women's Democratic Club of Reading and the Bible Class of Emory Methodist Episcopal Church.

Prof. Ralph S. Boots of the department of political science of the University of Pittsburgh, made this statement yesterday in regard to voting machines:

"If a depositor should walk into his bank tomorrow and find one of the employes sweating over a column of figures with pencil or pen he would almost certainly inquire, 'Can't you fellows afford to buy an adding machine?' The engineer, confronted with the necessity of making many mathematical calculations, reaches at once for his slide-rule. Mechanical accuracy is being substituted everywhere in the field of computation for human uncertainty. It is being done in the old and familiar and fundamental matter of popular voting by means of the voting machine, which is simply a mechanical device for recording and counting the voters' choice among the candidates for office, and is almost as simple and easy to operate as a drinking cup or a chewing gum slot machine.

"People are so accustomed to voting by means of paper ballots that many of them probably forget that ballots were not always used for voting. The earlier custom in England and the United States required the voter to call out in a loud voice to the election officer the names of those candidates he wished to vote for, and the election officer, thereupon, set down a tally mark on a sheet of paper. Missouri abolished such a system of viva voce voting so recently that there are persons living in that state today who voted the old-fashioned way before paper ballots were used. Plenty of people—and doubtless most of the ward politicians—of the day, opposed the method that then was new and strange.

"Perhaps the greatest fault of the old method was that every bystander knew how a person voted, and so bribery was encouraged, because the bribe-giver had no difficulty in learning whether the purchased voter had 'delivered the goods.' Besides, there were many chances for mistakes on the part of an honest election officer, and many opportunities for fraud on the part of a dishonest one. The old method of viva voce voting was cheaper, however, no ballots were printed at public expense, or at party or private expense. Nevertheless, paper ballots came gradually into use everywhere.

"Time has moved on. Paper ballots are getting out of date. As long ago as 1892 the citizens of Lockport, N. Y., began to use voting machines. At the present time part of the voters in 11 states use voting machines, and in five states — Connecticut, New York, Iowa, Indiana and Washington—from nearly one-half to about nine-tenths of all the votes are cast and counted on voting machines.

"The greatest advantage of the voting machine over the ballot is probably the accurate count which it assures. And the count is speedy, too. It goes right along with the voting, just as the figure representing the total number of fares increases as the conductor 'rings them up' on the most modern recording device. All that is necessary at the end is to read the totals for each candidate at the back of the machine when the cover of the counter compartment is unlocked and taken off. Within five minutes after the polls close, the precise results are known in the precinct. In a recent election in the city of Buffalo the complete returns were published in a newspaper within an hour."

Social Set Here Interested in Pilatski-Schmid Nuptials, Recently Solemnized in Paris

A WEDDING at St. Germain, near Paris, France, just announced here, which will interest a number of Pittsburghers, is that of Mlle. Elizabeth Pilatski, daughter of Mme. Albert Mayer and the late Prince Pilatski, and Albert W. Schmid, son of Mrs. Albert Schmid, of Paris, which took place November 22.

Mrs. Schmid, you will recall, was Nona Reed before her marriage and is a sister of W. Edgar Reed, of Fifth avenue. She and Mr. Schmid lived here for a short time after their marriage and then went to Havre, France. Her son was born abroad and, excepting for his school years spent at Exeter and Harvard, has lived in France all his life.

The civil ceremony took place at the Mairie of Mesnil-le-Roi and was followed by a religious service at the Church of Mesnil-le-Roi. Witnesses for the bridegroom were the Hon. A. M. Thackara, former consul general at Paris, and M. Pierre Bertier, while the bride's witnesses were the Grand Duke Boris and her uncle, M. Hayet.

The bride wore white satin embroidered in silver, with a tulle veil. Her maid of honor, Mlle. Jacqueline La Fourcade, and her bridesmaids, Mlle. Marcedes de Rivac and Louise Latimer Reed, daughter of the W. Edgar Reeds and, of course, a cousin of the bridegroom, wore peach chiffon with felt hats trimmed with the same shade of velvet. M. Maurice Bauche was best man, and the ushers were M. Charles de Sales, Lief Von Newman, Montague Steele and M. Pierre Bertier. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony in the bride's home in St. Germain, and later Mr. and Mrs. Schmid left for Mr. Schmid's country place, Chateau Val Fleuri, at Crespiere. They will make their home in Paris.

Louise Reed, you remember, is spending a year at school in Paris and consequently was able to attend her cousin's wedding.

Everything in black and white—costumes, decorations and all—against the colorful background of the Longue Vue Country Club—doesn't that sound interesting?

That is the idea of the black and white bal masque which is being arranged for tomorrow night in the club by the George Bertram Rylands and their daughter, Dorothy, of Beacon street. The Rylands have asked all their guests to wear fancy dress in black and white only, and the effect will probably be enchanting. Surprisingly beautiful designs can be worked out with this combination of tones, and it will be interesting to note the ingenuity of the costumes.

There is to be no particular guest of honor at the dance, but it is to be quite a large affair—about 200 guests—and certainly a novel one.

Most of the season's debutantes and an equal number of men are included in the guest list for the dinner which the junior John Hartwell Hillmanns, of Fifth avenue, are to give in their home Thursday, December 22. You remember, of course, that the Hillmans' eldest daughter, Juliet, is one of this year's buds.

The dinner, of course, precedes the dance to be given by Mrs. William Terrell Johnson, of Forbes street, for her debutante daughter, Mary Louise. And, by the way, have you noticed the marquee which is being erected adjoining the Johnson home for the dance? It follows the lines of the house in architecture, and that alone says much for its beauty.

Two or three of this winter's crop of debutantes are included in the list of those who will assist Mrs. William Maclay Hall at the drawing-room musicale to be held tomorrow afternoon in the Twentieth Century Club. HE'LL PROMOTE POLITE POLICE, SAYS MAYOR

"Politeness will be given weight in future promotions," said Mayor Charles H. Kline today in a statement urging all policemen to be courteous and saying that the "finest Christmas gift for the police to bestow on our own citizens and the transient guests within our gates would be a policy of amiable demeanor and affable treatment in the discharge of their duty."

"Most Pittsburgh policemen are polite," the Mayor said. "But that small percentage who for any reason fail to display good manners on all occasions are the index by which the entire force is judged. The odium is not confined to few, but spreads to all."

DENTIST SAYS WIFE HIT HIM AT DANCE

His wife could not keep servants because she abused them, Dr. Harry F. Kountz, dentist, charged in a bill of particulars which he added today to his divorce action against Martha L. Kountz, in Common Pleas Court.

They were married in 1922 and separated in 1926 and he was unable to sleep at night in their rooms at the Iroquois Apartments, because she continually nagged him, Kountz set forth. At th Southern Charity Ball in 1923 his wife slapped his face on the dance floor because she said he was flirting with another woman, Kountz averred. He gave his present address at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

23 MEN IDENTIFY BANDITS AND GIRL LURE

Pittsburgh's girl bandit suspect and the five young men alleged to have used her as a lure in robberies, stood in Morals Court this morning and faced a room full of men, mostly young, victims of numerous holdups during the last month. Each of the 23 men in the courtroom identified at least one of the members of the gang as having been implicated in a robbery. In addition, there are seven others who later will try to complete the identification.

When arraigned before Magistrate E. M. Hough, the five admitted committing more than 38 robberies here during the latter part of November and the first few days of December. Josephine Narr, the 16-year-old girl, who admitted her share in some of the operations of the gang, was held over, together with the five men: E. A. Santek, Albert Collett, F. F. Boyle, Joe Cooper and Anthony Collett.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Pauline Kitzing; five daughters, Mrs. A. G. Swope, Mrs. Louis Esken, Mrs. Philip Esken and Mrs. Gertrude Horner, of Terrace, and Mrs. Adam Wilhelm of Wilkinsburg, and two brothers, both in Germany.

She was born in Russia and came to this country a quarter century ago with her husband. MUST QUIT MATE TO GET CASH

Unless she is widowed or divorced from her husband, Mrs. Alice McKenzie, 350 Aiken avenue, is not entitled to a share in the income of an estate of $32,000 left by her aunt, Caroline Ramsey, late of 5441 Claybourne street. The income is to be divided between two nieces and three grandnieces and after their deaths will go to the Home for the Aged at Wilkinsburg.

According to Mrs. McKenzie, the clause in the will which provided that she be left out of the share in the estate was due to a personal disagreement between Miss Ramsey and her niece's husband two years ago.

PLAN TRAVIS TROPHY

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Honoring the memory of Walter J. Travis, a trophy has been donated to the tournament committee of the national amateur championship of golf club champions. The award will be known as the Walter J. Travis memorial trophy and will be awarded annually to the club whose champion wins the national amateur championship.

Grid Leaders In Alliances

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 7.—Michigan and Harvard will definitely resume gridiron relations in 1929 and 1930, it was announced today by Athletic Director Fielding H. Yost.

A home-and-home arrangement providing for the first game to be played here November 9, 1929, and a return contest at Cambridge, November 1, 1930, has been scheduled, bringing to a close negotiations which have been in process of completion for over a year.

Director Yost announced that the scheduling of the Harvard contests was made possible through an arrangement at the Big Ten coaches' conference at Chicago last week.

Harvard authorities desired a game here in 1928, and a return meeting at Cambridge in 1930, but Michigan's heavy schedule next season prevented the consummation of this arrangement.

WISCONSIN SANCTIONS GAMES

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 7.—The Wisconsin athletic department has announced sanction by the athletic council of a two-year home and home contract between the Badgers and Notre Dame, with the first game scheduled to be played in Madison October 6, 1928.

Final approval of the contract rests with Notre Dame authorities.

middle of this period, after Smith had been banished for illegal checking, that the invaders put on their fiercest drive of the night. Concentrating on defense and satisfying themselves with long shots, the Blues weathered the storm and came up for the third canto with honors still even.

Using combination plays involving three and four men, the Rangers carried the play to the Cleghorn stalwarts when the battling was renewed. At one time eight men were sprawled on the ice in front of the Pirate goal, and much of the time Worters was in a prostrate position making diving saves. It was from one of these wild scrimmages that Boucher, one of the league's leading scorers, let go a shot that put the Gohamites back in the lead again.

DRURY TIES COUNT

It was not until the Pirate regulars had spent their strength and had been relieved by the reserves that help came from an unexpected quarter, unexpected in that it was Drury who supplied the deadlocking punch. Long famed for his fine skating and stick handling, Herb shook the erratic shooting jinx long enough to send in a long angling drive from the boards, a drive that took Chabot by surprise and that took the game into extra periods.

Play in the overtime was as hot as overtime play generally is—only more so. Honors were about even until the last two minutes, when the Rangers gave up the chase and adopted safety-first methods.

The lineup:

Pirates—2		Rangers—2
Worters	G	Chabot
Langlois	R.D.	Johnson
Smith	L.D.	Bourgeault
Miller	C	Boucher
Darragh	R.W.	R. Cook
McCurry	L.W.	F. Cook

Pirate spares—Drury, White, Rothschild, Cotton, Arbour and McKinnon. Rangers, Gray, Thompson, Boyd, Murdoch.

Referee—Louis Berlinquette, Montreal. Umpire—Dan Marsh, Toronto.

Scoring: First period—Gray (from Scott), 7:04; Miller, 14:44. Third period—Boucher, 1:33; Drury (from Rothschild), 4:25.

Penalties—Bourgeault, Bill Cook, Smith, Miller, McCurry, McKinnon.

COAST TRIP OFF

The Dukes will not go to California to meet Santa Clara in a post-season game this year, according to an announcement yesterday by John Holohan, faculty manager.

yield to me the proper allowance of tape and gauze.

About as soon as the bandages had been applied, this official ordered me to go into the ring.

"What about Tunney?" I asked.

"He is on his way now," answered the official.

It earlier had been understood that Tunney and I would leave for the ring at about the same time, on orders from the commission, so that neither of us would be subjected to a "waiting session" by the other.

As everybody knows, I was forced into that ring nearly 15 minutes before Tunney got there. Perhaps the commission, which declared that I got a "fair enough break" can explain why I had to wait nearly a quarter of an hour for Tunney.

I forget the name of the fellow who did the announcing that night. But whoever he was, he struck me as being an individual who forgot that his job merely was to introduce both fighters in neutral, sportsmanlike fashion. When he introduced me—well, he just did the introducing which was all I could ask for—or want. But when he introduced Tunney, he got all excited with himself and, instead of being just an announcer, he acted like a college cheer leader.

ANNOUNCER FAVORS GENE.

I am not making any kick on this, in the true sense of kicking. I am merely relating these incidents to point out that the bandage episode, the stunt of getting me into the ring and having me wait for Tunney, and the conduct of the announcer in making the introductions, were things which seemed to be rather studied efforts on the part of the men responsible for it to annoy me.

Why did the commissioner's official try to deprive me of getting my rightful share of bandage cloth and the rightful yardage of adhesive tape—and force me to trot out the rules before he would yield?

Why did he rush me into the ring so that I'd have to sit around and wait nearly a quarter of an hour for Tunney?

Why did that announcer, appointed by the commission and who was supposed to be wholly impartial, pull that cheap trick of trying to create crowd sentiment for Tunney?

I've never begrudged cheers and plaudits that have been given to my ring foemen. And I'm glad over every cheer that Gene Tunney got. He deserved them—richly. But I don't believe that that cheer leader trick that announcer attempted met favor even with Tunney, in whose behalf he was doing it.

And why didn't the commission, knowing that I objected to Barry, appoint a referee agreeable to both fighters?

First Choice by almost 2 to 1

In outselling any other "Six" at or near the price, by almost 2 to 1, Essex is all by itself as first choice in public estimation of value.

Yet even these overwhelming sales figures do not express the full preference. They do not record the long period when the greatest production in Essex history could not keep pace with demand and thousands of buyers were forced to do with other cars.

In this preference is registered the unmistakable verdict for the performance, comfort and values that belong exclusively to Essex:

6-Cylinder Smoothness and Dash—High-compression Power and Performance—Size and Roominess without Unwieldiness—Steady Riding without Useless Weight—50 miles an hour all day long—and far greater speed when wanted—Riding Ease Like Flying—Economy of Price, with Operation and Maintenance Engineered to Lowest Costs.

It is exclusive performance because Essex Super-Six design is exclusive. And because every part of motor and chassis is engineered to true balance with every other part.

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1927

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

THE hard task of keeping his men near edge for 39 days, and meanwhile taking them on the long journey across the continent and sending them into a game against Stanford on January 2 in the warm climate of California which generally has a weakening effect upon Easterners in such a sport as football, are not the only obstacles that are confronting Coach Jock Sutherland of Pitt in his efforts to win the big gridiron contest featuring the Tournament of Roses.

Some other difficulties of no slight nature will be encountered by the Pitt mentor and his athletes in the game itself, according to information received from the coast concerning Stanford's plan of battle.

TIPS received in the Panther camp here from Pitt alumni in the Far West who have been keeping a collective eye on Stanford's preparations are to the effect that the Californians in the game of January 2 are going to depend largely upon their size and physical condition, and the individual ability of Fullback Hoffman.

Hoffman is said to be a real star. He shone in every game he played for Stanford during the regular season, and will be the chief weapon of the coast team against Pitt in so far as straight football is concerned.

BUT that's only part of the story. Stanford has another huge advantage, perhaps the greatest of all factors, in the matter of acclimatization. The natives are inured to playing in the warm climate, whereas it will be a hard task for Pitt to keep from "going down" under the enervating effects of the high temperature in which they are not accustomed to such violent exertion as is called for in football.

And when there is an opening to turn a football trick it is hardly necessary to inform the fans of this district that Pop Warner is not likely to overlook it.

WARNER will run true to his old form if reports from Palo Alto are to be credited. He has a scheme to make the warm climate count even more heavily toward weakening Pitt than it might be expected to do under ordinary circumstances.

Pop has a fast halfback named Hiland, and it is said to be Pop's scheme to use Hiland in the first part of the game in such a manner as to take the pep out of the Panthers more quickly.

Instead of trying for actual gains at first with Hiland, Warner's plan, according to the rumors out of the West, is to use the halfback repeatedly in runs straight across the field toward the sidelines, reversing as often as possible.

The idea is to make as many of the Pitt players as can be drawn into the play chase him across the field time after time, Pop figuring that the Pittsburghers will be speedily weakened after they have been kept running at full speed in play after play. Then, when they are down under the strange warm climate, the "old man" expects his team to tear through them to victory.

THIS will not be the first time that such a plan has been worked against Eastern teams playing in California, as it has been used to advantage by coast elevens on a number of occasions, but it is said Warner plans to use it oftener than any other Far Western coach has ever put it into practice.

Coach Sutherland appears to be more concerned about the effect of the climate on his men than any other factor entering into the game. It was for the purpose of making their stay in California before the game as short as possible that he had the time of departure from Pittsburgh set back one day, so that the squad will not leave here until the night of December 26, instead of the night of December 25, as at first planned.

Under this arrangement they will arrive in Pasadena only two days before the game, detraining on Saturday, December 31. There will be just one practice session preceding the contest.

PIRATE ICE SIX HITS FASTEST STRIDE

By CARL W. SHATTO.

ODIE CLEGHORN now can call in any and all Pittsburgh operatives engaged in the business of chasing puck chasers in the frozen North. In holding New York's rough and ruthless Rangers to a 2-2 deadlock in 70 minutes of battling so hot that it fairly melted Duquesne Garden ice, the Pirates made it plain that what they need is not additional talent, but copious quantities of raw meat.

Yes, the Pirates thrive on adversity. Weaker than the weak in their early engagements, they have proven stronger than the strong in their last two encounters with the runner-up Bostonians and the pace-setting New Yorkers. Last night's fray was easily the most gruelling and sensational that has been played here this season, and it was made so by Buccos armed with new-found efficiency and with a spirit that would not admit defeat. Twice the invaders forged into the lead and twice the Pirates tied it up, and when the overtime fire burned hottest it was the Rangers who wilted, the Rangers who gave up and courted a draw while they dallied with the puck behind their own net.

GRAY OPENS SCORING

In enthusiasm, the fairly large crowd matched the high quality of the fight. It was upon Milks and Drury, the Pittsburgh goal producers, that the biggest waves of cheering broke.

Honors in the first period were about even. Brothers Bill and Bun Cook set off the first fireworks with a combination attack which forced Goalie Worters into quick action. Langlois retaliated with a solo effort, the Bucs' only thrust of the first few minutes. The first goal was recorded at 7:04 and was, to some extent, the result of Pirate carelessness. Idly bouncing the disc against the boards while two Pittsburghers looked on, Scott suddenly let go a pass which Gray, coming in rapidly from the opposite side, took in front of the net and lifted into the top strands of the mesh.

Galled by the bitterness of justice, the Pirates put on a sustained drive that was climaxed at 14:04 with a brilliant, unassisted goal by Hib Milks. Hib's lone sortie, through the entire invading force, was the most spectacular that has been seen at the Garden this season.

At the start of the second stanza Smith and White were robbed of scores by the agility of Chabot, in the New York nets. It was in the

ZIVIC TO BOX HARMON HERE

Jack Zivic and Willie Harmon have been matched for the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. It will be their third meeting. Zivic won in 12 rounds in New York in 1925 and was held to a draw by Harmon in 10 rounds, May 17, 1926. Harmon stopped Young Saylor in five rounds in the Motor Square ring Monday night of last week.

Tug Phillips will meet Joe Martin of Cleveland on the Holy Cedar-Canastota Bob card at Erie Friday night.

Tommy Milligan, the British middleweight champion, and Alex Ireland, who first fought each other back in 1922 box again tonight over the 20-round route in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Benny Touchstone, the Florida heavyweight, meets a set-up in Tiny Jim Herman in Brooklyn tonight. Ted Sandwina, son of the circus strong woman, boxes Gus Berger of Brooklyn in the semi-final.

The winner of the Jimmy Duffy-Jimmy Silver bout in San Francisco tonight is to be matched with either Ace Hudkins or Sergt. Sammy Baker.

Willie Davies and his manager, Jim Buchanan, were in a spill on the Donora highway Monday night and narrowly escaped serious injury. Their car overturned.

Andy Divoli, New York welterweight, is now in Los Angeles seeking matches with the Coast stars.

Jack Kelly, former featherweight boxer of McKeesport, is doing a "comeback" at Gary, Ind., where he now makes his home. He is matched for a four-round exhibition bout with Jole Ray, the runner-boxer, at the Knights of Columbus hall, Gary, and may return here shortly.

Jerry McDermott, of Terre Haute, has been substituted for Joe Dregnon as Andy Tomosky's opponent at Cincinnati and the show has been set back one week to Saturday night of next week. Teddy Welch boxes Billy Rose in another bout on the card.

Homer Robertson, former local Negro middleweight, meets Oak Till of Rochester, N. Y., in the eight-round semi-final to the Jack Delaney-Paul Berlenbach bout at Chicago Friday night.

Phil Scott, the English heavyweight champion, and Johnny Risko do their stuff in Cleveland tonight.

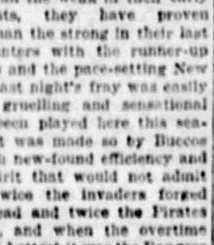
Young Griffo, who died in New York today, was one of the odd characters of the ring whose memory will live long. Dissipation in his early days alone prevented him from being one of the greatest of champions.—HARRY KECK.

HANDBALL

Doubles match on one of the six four-wall handball courts of the Y. M. & Y. W. H. A., in its fine athletic plant in Bellefield avenue between Fifth avenue and Forbes street. The Y. M. & Y. W. H. A boxing show will be held in the gymnasium, the third of a series, Thursday night of next week, and the Y. M. H. A. basketball team, with victories under its belt over the Heinz House and Mellon Bank teams, will engage the Mifflin Avenue M. E. Church five on the home court Saturday night. Art Scher is athletic director of the Y.

"The LONG COUNT" by Jack Dempsey

Former Heavyweight Champion's Own Story of His Near-knockout Victory in Return Bout with Gene Tunney.



CHAPTER III.

WHEN I climbed into the ring on the night of September 22 in Chicago and saw that Dave Barry was in there as referee—well, plenty of the hope that I had for victory left me then and there.

There were reasons for that feeling.

Before the fight, there was some debate between Leo P. Flynn, my representative, and the Tunney crowd as to the selection of the referee. I had no personal preference as to the referee. But I did have an objection. And I objected to Barry.

Barry did plenty of things to me in the ring, but even before I climbed into the ring I came to feel that it was going to be an unpleasant evening for me, so far as official treatment was concerned.

While I was in my dressing room, a representative of the commission came in and tossed me one roll of bandage and three yards of adhesive tape. The rules provided that Tunney and I were to get one roll of bandage for EACH hand and three yards of tape for EACH hand—not one roll and three yards for both. I so informed the official, whose snappy answer was:

"That's all you get—and that's final."

"Well," I said, "it may be final with you, but it is not final with me. The rules allow me two rolls of bandage and six yards of tape."

"Oh, no they don't," he said.

"Oh, yes they do," I answered.

HUSTLED INTO RING.

So I got a copy of the agreement which provided two rolls of bandage and six yards of tape and bid to point out the clause to this official of the commission, which body had drafted the very rule, before he would

BUSH-DREYFUSS TO BE FETED

A testimonial dinner is to be tendered Barney Dreyfuss and Donie Bush of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club by Senator Frank J. Harris Saturday night. It is to be given exclusively for members of the Amen Corner, and will take place in the Amen suite at William Penn Hotel, beginning at 6:30 o'clock.

The dinner promises to be one of the most interesting functions in the club's unique history, and in tendering it the host pays personal tribute to his friendship for Dreyfuss and Bush as recognition of their accomplishment in winning the National League pennant for Pittsburgh in the nerve-racking season of 1927.

POTTER'S FIELD AWAITS BODY

NEW YORK, Dec. 7—(AP.)—Alfred Griffith, 55, known to fight fans of 25 years ago as Young Griffo, died suddenly early today in a basement room on the West Side, where he had lived for several years. In the absence of a report by the medical examiner, acute indigestion was believed the cause of his death.

He came to this country from Australia and first fought as a featherweight, later moving up to the lightweight class. His most noted ring engagements were against George Dixon, Jack McAuliffe and Kid Lavigne.

He was known as one of the cleverest defensive boxers in the world. He used to wager that he could stand upon a handkerchief and no one could hit him in the face. Another wager he used to win was to bet that no one could knock a cigar out of his mouth.

GIVEN HOME BY FRIEND

Fortune turned its back on the once famous fighter in recent years. He earned a precarious livelihood peddling papers and doing odd jobs. He was often seen in the doorways near the bright lights district recounting glories of bygone years. He had taken on weight and tipped the scales at 200 pounds.

Mrs. Rose Collins, who had provided him with living quarters for the last 12 years without charge, said he returned home about midnight last night, as was his custom. Shortly before 2 o'clock this morning, she said, he knocked on the door of the kitchen.

When she asked him what was the matter, he said:

"I'm choking. I'm sick."

He collapsed in the hallway and died soon afterward.

Mrs. Collins, the widow of a former saloonkeeper, said the fighter was a close friend of her late husband. Their acquaintance, she said, dated from the time Griffo, then in the heyday of his fighting career, entered Collins' West Side saloon, dropped a handkerchief on the floor, stood on it and offered to "buy drinks for the house" if anyone could land a punch on him. None was able to hit him.

POTTER'S FIELD LOOMS

About 12 years ago, after her husband had retired, she said, Griffo, then in straitened circumstances, came to their home to live.

When the police went to Griffo's room to gather his possessions, they found they consisted only of the clothes he had worn the day before.

Mrs. Collins said that unless his friends raised a fund to pay his funeral expenses he undoubtedly would be buried in Potter's Field, as she could not afford to pay the expenses of the funeral.

GRIDDERS FETED AT BANQUET

CALIFORNIA, Pa., Dec. 7.—Three football squads were honored and prominent grid coaches spoke at the big dinner given here last night under the auspices of the Hungry Club.

The festive occasion was a tribute to the California Normal, California High and East Pike Run High schools, the members of the three teams being in attendance.

Andy Kerr, head coach of the Washington and Jefferson football team, was the principal speaker. Others on the speaking card were Charlie Bowser, former Pitt center and present assistant coach of the Panthers; John (Pie) Williams, former Pitt end and present assistant athletic director at Pitt; Dr. John Entz of California State Normal School, Richard Hawthorn, president of the Hungry Club, and Charles J. Doyle, baseball writer of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Being Business Superman Has Its Heavy Drawbacks.

By B. C. FORBES

BEING an outstanding business genius has its drawbacks.

It was urged in this column the other day that great enterprises should, wherever possible, have their chief executives become widely and favorably known to the public.

But this suggestion needs to be followed by another, namely, that every head of a corporation and large institution should devote himself to training a successor and, in the fullness of time, to having this prospective successor introduced to the public so as to dispel any notion on the part of the public that the business had become a one-executive affair.

THE statement that being a business superman has its drawbacks may strike those who are not in that position as ridiculous. But it isn't.

The farther a man towers above his fellows, the greater the responsibilities and burdens usually falling upon his shoulders. Often times such a man becomes a veritable slave to his daily duties. He can find very little opportunity for spending time with his family, for recreation, for travel, for friendly hours and associations not connected with business. His very genius makes it doubly hard for him to find associates even half way as capable of solving complex problems.

THE law of compensation does not let a Napoleon of industry or finance escape. The greater a man's genius the less the likelihood of his having a son capable of filling his tremendously large shoes. Men of lesser ability usually have sons capable of taking their place. But nature rarely blesses a shining genius with a son of equal talents.

Our Rockefellers, our Fords, our Carnegies, our Armours, our Coffins, our Vails, our Fricks, our Mellons, our Harrimans, our Hills, our Commodors Vanderbilts, our Stillmans, our Morgans, our Schwabs, our Edisons, apparently are fated not to beget sons capable of becoming equally exceptional supermen.

And I have been sufficiently close to such men to know how this failure has gnawed at their hearts.

NOT one-billion-dollar or even half-billion-dollar enterprise comes to my mind that has as its real head today a son of its upbuilder—with the exception of Swift & Co.

JUST as it is easier to fill capably a $5,000 job than a $50,000 job so it is easier to fill a $100,000 job than a $1,000,000 a year job.

Yet it is clearly a duty of the men filling the most important positions in the land to devote an adequate part of their time and their talents to picking a promising successor and to developing and training him most painstakingly. To do otherwise would be to take a short-sided, selfish view; it would be a shirking of responsibilities towards all connected with the enterprise, including the whole body of stockholders.

Some giants are doing this. But many are not.

THE day is coming when wise investors will be influenced in selecting securities by the success or the failure of heads of colossal corporations to fit someone to step into their shoes.

REACTION TREND INVADES STOCKS

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Pronounced reactionary tendencies developed in today's stock market. In commission house circles, there was a tendency to attribute the selling to President Coolidge's reiteration of the statement that he was not a candidate for re-election, to the sharp falling off in steel production last month, and the further decline in the first week of December, but in banking quarters the view was expressed that the market was entitled to reaction on technical grounds after its recent spirited advance. Early declines ran from 5 to 12 points in some of the high priced issues.

Not all of the day's news was unfavorable, however, a further advance of 15 points to 14.50 cents was announced in the price of export copper, call money renewed at 4 per cent instead of 4½ and Secretary Mellon in his annual report to Congress today characterized business as fundamentally sound and took an optimistic view of the future. Sterling exchange dropped from the high of $4.88 9-32 for cables on London yesterday to $4.88 5-16 today, temporarily setting at rest fears of heavy gold shipments to England following the first consignment since 1914 which leaves tonight.

Steel shares were liquidated rather freely on reports that production had fallen to the lowest level of the year, although current inquiries indicate a substantial pick-up after the first of the year. Midland Steel Products preferred broke 12 points, U. S. Steel common sold down 3 to 141, and losses of a point or more took place in the others.

Dupont sold off 6½ points and numerous other high-priced industrials, including Case Threshing, International Harvester, Radio, Greene Cananea Copper, American Machine and Foundry sold down 2 to 5½ points. General Motors dropped 2½ by early afternoon.

Rails yielded with the industrials, with the sharpest breaks in Atlantic Coast Line, Lehigh Valley and Canadian Pacific, all off 4 to 5 points.

Hiawnox Steel suffered a sharp drop on the late market, selling down to around 100 as against a top of 111¾ registered on the advance a few days ago. There was nothing to account for the weakness and some of the traders continued to express confidence that directors will take some favorable dividend action at the next meeting.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE d'ALROY

ON "THE OINTMENT OF LOVE"

LOVE, it seems, is a Universal OINTMENT.
It CAN be applied to
All the ILLS of the WORLD and bring RELIEF. (That is,
Of COURSE, if it is UNSELFISH love.)
But when TWO people are
MADLY in love with
Each OTHER—though
Love is AGAIN an OINTMENT—there is often
A FLY in it.
For usually EACH one wants
The OTHER to do
Or be what THEY wish—
And when the other FAILS
They get IRRITATED, and REPROACH them, or Suffer in SILENCE.
And EITHER is bad.
PETTY natures REPROACH,
PROUD ones REPRESS.
The wise WAIT,
And LATER, show their HURT.
Then, INSTANTLY the Ointment is APPLIED with Tender, HEALING hands.

Same as Ever

Brown: "Did you hear that Jigson has married his typist?"

Green: "No. How are they getting on?"

Brown: "Oh, same as ever. When he starts to dictate she takes him down."

Dinner on Trial

"Shall I bring you some dinner?" asked the steward of the ship.

"Yes, you may bring me one on approval," replied the passenger, as he gazed over the bounding deep. "I may not want to keep it."

Spared the Agony

They were newly married and not in the best of circumstances.

Said he: "If things don't go better with us, darling, I suppose your father won't see us starve."

"No, poor dear," replied the young wife; "his sight gets worse every day."

Unalarmed

Landlady: "Don't be afraid of the meat, Mr. Hobbs.' The new boarder: "I'm not afraid of it. I've seen twice as much meat, and it didn't frighten me a bit."

How to Discourage Thugs Who Are Slaughtering Us

We read that detectives armed with riot guns and tear-gas bombs were sent out to rid the city of thugs who have been holding up citizens, beating victims into unconsciousness and robbing them. It is time something that appears to have a sanguinary intent were done. So far the blood-spilling has all been on the wrong side. Reports of a few casualties among desperados would be a welcome change in the news of violent happenings.

Orders to "shoot to kill" may have a blood-thirsty sound, but if our police really had the reputation of doing that consistently there would not have to be very many deaths in the underworld before its killers and maimers would depart from Pittsburgh.

Have a Heart for Postmen

It costs the Government exactly $5,000,000 for extra men and equipment to deliver the Christmas presents. If everybody would begin mailing presents today this sum would be greatly decreased.

Another reason for early mailing is the postman. There is no more faithful public servant and none who gets along on smaller pay. Why afflict this man at the last moment with extra burdens?

Require Lobbyists to Register and File Account

Again we face at the nation's capital the swarming of lobbyists.

It is time that something were done to bring this swarming under some measure of control.

It is the duty of every citizen to be interested in the making and enforcing of laws. It is a sovereign right in this self-governing nation for citizens singly or in association to bring before elected representatives their views of public policy.

Nobody should, and under our Constitution nobody could, abridge this right.

But if it is the right of the people to petition and counsel, it is equally their duty to do so in a wholesome manner.

Every person who serves a special interest at a center of legislation should be required to disclose whom he serves and for what price.

Two States have met this issue rather well.

Conservative Massachusetts and progressive Wisconsin both require that lobbyists for pay shall enroll and give details.

At their capitals are dockets in which the names of all persons employed as legislative counsel or agents must be written, together with the names of employers, the names, residences and occupations of employes, the dates and agreements of employment, and the subjects of legislation involved.

Such employes are required to do their work in specified places. In Wisconsin each must file within thirty days after the close of a session complete and detailed statements of expenses under oath.

It is possible, of course, for astute lobbyists to flout the law, but to do so they must become criminals. In their general trend these laws have proved wholesome.

The need of similar control over professional manipulators of legislation is greater at Washington than in the capital of any State, because the interests which focus there are greater.

Don't Like or Understand Us

Some of Us Don't Like THEM

OUR ELECTRIC CHAIR IN A MOSCOW PROCESSION

Our Soviet friends in Russia recently celebrated what they call "International Youth Day." Tens of thousands of young men paraded and took occasion, as shown above, to show disapproval of the United States and Uncle Sam's government.

The procession took place shortly after the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti by order of a Massachusetts court, and one feature of the procession, as shown here, was the carrying of an electric chair with a skeleton sitting in it, and signs displaying insults for Uncle Sam and what the Russians call his "capitalistic government."

Young Russians celebrated the day with patriotic songs and fiery speeches, and went home happy.

They really believe that we deliberately put men in the electric chair because we didn't approve their political opinions. We know that we DO NOT.

We misjudge them, perhaps, as violently as they misjudge us. Many of us believe that their chief delight is murder, which it ISN'T; that they have torn down the family and destroyed marriage, which they have NOT done.

They ARE trying to establish a government by the working people, or proletariat. We believe that can't be done, any more than you can arrange to have the feet run the body in place of the head.

We think such a Communist government can't last forever.

They say that here cunning brains possessing well-organized money are the real government. They say that such a government as that can't last forever.

We may be right about their government, and they may be more or less right about ours. No government is perfect.

The sensible thing to do would be to let each nation run its country in its own way. It isn't our business what they do in RUSSIA, any more than it is their business what we do HERE.

But meddling is the specialty of the human race.

Helped by Weakness

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WOODROW WILSON, in one of his letters, said: "You try and try with all the strength that is in you to help a person, and you can't. Suddenly you find you can help in your weakness as you can't in your strength."

This is something that is hard to understand and yet it is a very important truth.

It is an error that many strong people make, to think that with the failure of their strength comes their failure to help the one they love.

Particularly is this the case between husband and wife.

A wife will be estranged from her husband, separated by his business and his absorption in it. He is providing her with everything and doing all he can for her sake, yet, somehow, he fails to register with her. Suddenly he is taken sick or some calamity befalls him and this calamity unlocks all her stores of affection. What he did not see when he was strong he is made to feel when he is weak. He has done more for the successful career of the marriage bark by his weakness than he did by his strength.

Often a man's failure in his work in life comes like a trumpet call to his mate and she develops qualities that otherwise would not have been seen.

One who is invariably strong and self-reliant is apt to get lonesome. The greatest compliment that you can pay any one is to be dependent on him.

People like to be of service. Many a woman who was happy when she washed and ironed and did the housework for her family is miserable when they become so rich that she does not need to do anything.

Every one likes to be of use in the world, our self-esteem and all our good qualities are brought out by seeing that we are of service.

No matter how gifted or handsome a person may be it is of no avail unless he is helping somebody. Weakness is a call to such a person and oftentimes it helps far more than strength.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Most professional humorists appear so freighted with woe it seems something should be done. Irvin Cobb's face in repose might be taken for a brooding gargoyle. And a pastel of Ring Lardner could be appropriately labeled: "A Gentleman About to Cry."

Bugs Baer wanders about the cafes and entertainment temples with the glum, funereal melancholy of a tragedian. When George Ade calls, you somehow expect him to be followed by assistants carrying embalming fluid. Other equally well known wits are sour-visaged and pensive.

The professional humorist is usually a glib talker among intimates, but in public he is a conversational dud. You rather feel it would be a good idea to cheer him up or he might break up the party in an unrestrained fit of sobbing.

The truth is, I believe, the droll comedians acquire a self-conscious strain. They seem to feel strangers eye them with the thought: "Be funny—we dare you!" And likely strangers do. An old saw reads: "Only the fool seeks constant laughter."

If this is not accurately quoted, correct me. I love mail. Every editor has observed the humorous writer soon tires of the comic grind. He wants to become serious and it requires much editorial cajoling to keep him in a funny groove.

Will Rogers, Irvin Cobb and Robert Benchley are skillful after-dinner speakers. Also a few other humorists. But the majority are unable to rise to the occasion. They flounder around in a pathetic bewilderment to muffled groans.

Professional humorists are the most highly paid in the writing business. Almost every publication seeks the man or woman who can make their readers giggle. And are willing to pay top price for such efforts. And as a side line these days, the humorist may endorse a new brand of cigarets.

On the other hand there are innumerable wits who can convulse a audience with their lively chatter and are complete flops when it comes to putting their sallies on paper. One comique was recently signed for a series of six articles for a weekly magazine at $1,000 per article. He wrote three which never saw print. And quit.

At one of those celebrity nights in a supper club the guest of honor arrived lighted up like a torch. After slumping into his chair he fell into a deep sleep, out of which the embarrassed hostess could not arouse him. "He'll be all right," she finally said, brightly. "He had a tough day at the office."

One agency employs 500 private patrolmen and another 500 for emergencies. Most private patrolmen work in exclusive residential areas, where their chief duties are assisting teetering gentlemen to their doors and holding the flashlight for them to find the keyhole. Yet statistics show their mere presence diminishes crime in their territory.

Fifth avenue was regaled this fall by the battle of pigeons. When a synagogue was torn down hundreds of pigeons nesting in the eaves found themselves homeless. They decided to move enmasse to the aristocratic eaves of the public library at Forty-second street. They did—and the battle followed. The synagogue pigeons retreated temporarily, but every day for a week went back and the battle was renewed. Finally, in futility, they departed, and were seen no more and the library pigeons cooed their triumph. I never thought pigeons would act that way.

Britishers seem to have won top matinee idol honors this season. In every instance the heart palpitaters were cuff-shooters from perfidious old Albion.

At one of those musical revues where a gorgeously arrayed player appears before the curtains announcing: "I am Music!" a voice from the gallery piped: "Yeah!" It doesn't read funny, but it was.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

A Picturesque Meteor

THE southern part of the State of Illinois was treated to a meteoric exhibition of a very uncommon kind on the 13th of July last. About 1 o'clock in the afternoon of that day "a piece appeared to fall off the sun."

At a height of fifteen or twenty miles above the earth, near the town of Tilden, it burst, "showing green and then purple," but after a second bursting it was invisible to persons at a distance, although it had at first appeared very brilliant to observers a hundred miles from the point where the explosion occurred.

Fragments of the meteor were scattered over an area of two by seven miles, but only four are reported to have been found. "A cloud of smoke was visible near the point of fall, but the falling pieces quickly had their velocity reduced (by atmospheric resistance), so that they were no longer luminous by daylight, and only one piece was actually seen while falling. It appeared as a dark streak like smoke for an instant."

The four fragments found are described in "Science" by Professor C. C. Wylie, from whose account I derive the details here given. They are all composed of a light gray stone, "showing small, silvery globular aggregates, presumably of nickel-iron." The surfaces are pitted and covered with the black crust typical of meteors. This is produced by the fierce heating during the rush through the air. The largest of the fragments weighs 110 pounds, the second largest, 46 pounds, and the third, 9 pounds, while the fourth, weighing only a few ounces, was found lying on a lawn.

With the exception of the small sliver, all of the pieces found had penetrated the ground to different depths, the soil being a rather stiff clay, hardened by weeks of dry weather. The 110-pound mass penetrated three feet ten inches in soil lying at the edge of a field of peas; the 46-pound mass penetrated fifteen inches in a clover pasture; the 9-pound piece five inches in a backyard grass plot.

Other interesting details gathered by Professor Wylie are as follows: "Following the detonations a roar like a tornado or an earthquake rolled to the southeast and died away in the distance. Few in the vicinity of the fall saw anything, owing to clouds covering the sky, although nearly everyone was looking, after the house-shaking blasts of the detonations. The meteor traveled with a velocity greater than that of sound, so the roar from the more distant portions of the path was heard after the detonations of the bursting in the nearer portion.

"The falling stones made a hum like an airplane flying high. The three largest pieces were heard to strike, the largest a few seconds after the blasts, the 46-pound piece 'perhaps three minutes after,' and for the nine-pound piece we have two careful estimates, 'three to five minutes,' and 'five to eight minutes.'"

Since Professor Wylie estimates that the velocity of the meteor before entering the atmosphere was twenty-five to thirty miles per second, the rapid reduction produced by atmospheric resistance affords, as he remarks, a striking evidence of the tremendous resistance of the lower atmosphere to bodies traveling through it at high velocities. This meteor, going at a rate that would have carried it from the earth to the moon in between three and four hours, was slowed down to a speed of under 1,000 feet per second by passing through a few miles of transparent air. This gives a comforting assurance of the effectiveness of our atmospheric shield. But for it the smallest fragments plunging upon the earth with meteoric velocity would be more deadly than machine-gun fire. As it is, the air offers such perfect protection that no very small bodies can reach the earth's surface, being burnt up on their way. The little piece picked up on the lawn in Illinois owed its escape from destruction to the fact that it was blown off of a large mass.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Be Alert in Traffic

SOME noted man gives out the statement that often the most intelligent persons are the poorest automobile drivers.

That being so, such persons should not be given licenses.

The superintendent of a certain large manufacturing plant has made the statement that he plans most of his work driving back and forth.

He adds that he has often reached his office with not more than the faintest conception of the course he had taken and the speed with which he had driven—mind almost a blank to the driving end of the trip.

Such a man is a menace to other drivers along the way.

Driving in traffic requires the undivided attention of the one at the wheel.

The man who cannot or who will not center his mind on his job is more dangerous than the person of little brain power who uses all he has for the job of driving when he is driving.

The erratic way that some folk get over the road in city streets, weaving in and out of the traffic, is evidence that Providence is kind to them.

The Rhyming Optimist

Candle-Light and Tea

DECEMBER days are very drear
(So many people say)
They look askance and think me queer
Because I find them gay.
They say that nature everywhere
Shows life is on the wane;
The sighing trees are stripped and bare,
The very winds complain.
The sight of ice and sleet and snow
Daunts them and chills them through;
They long for Spring when roses blow
And robin-redbreasts woo.
But I delight in dismal days
And sleet on every tree,
Their shadowed gloom I always praise
With candle-light and tea!
For when the Winter prisons me
Within a quiet room,
I only drink more cups of tea
And make more candles bloom!
Then friends come in and talk awhile,
The cat purrs loud and long;
I like its notes (though critics smile)
As well as robin's song!

Ye Towne Gossip

By K. C. B.

ONTO MY door.
ON JUST one day.
THERE CAME two men.
* * *
TWO MEN I'd known.
IN YOUNGER days.
AND BETTER days.
FOR BOTH of them.
* * *
AND THE first to come.
HAD ALL his life.
BEEN A wanderer.
AND MOST of his time.
HAD BEEN idle time.
AND MONEY to him.
WHEN IT came his way.
* * *
WAS AN errant thing.
TO JUST let go.
WHEREVER IT would.
AND SO he lived.
AND SO far as I know.
HE DID NO wrong.
TO ANYONE.
AND I'M very sure.
THAT HIS kindly ways.
AND THE smile he had.
WERE OFTENTIMES.
A WELCOME gift.
TO THOSE he passed.
UPON HIS path.
AND AS I've said.
HE CALLED on me.
* * *
STILL WITH the strength.
OF YOUTHFUL days.
AND WHAT of help.
I GAVE to him.

I GRUDGED THE giving.
AND CHIDED HIM.
FOR HIS shiftlessness.
AND THEN there came.
ON THAT same day.
ANOTHER man.
* * *
WHOM I had known.
ONE WHO had held.
ANOTHER'S TRUST.
AND WHO had failed.
TO KEEP that trust.
AND NOW looked back.
ON COURT room scenes.
AND PRISON walls.
AND I took him in.
AND TALKED with him.
AND SYMPATHIZED.
AND THOUGHT out means.
OF AIDING him.
AND MADE him promise.
HE'D COME back.
AND SHOOK his hand.
AND LET him go.
AND I'M wondering now.
WHY I chided him.
* * *
WHOSE ONLY sin.
WAS HIS wandering.
AND AN hour later.
TOOK ANOTHER man.
BEARING the brand.
OF A broken trust.
AND CONDOLED with him.
I THANK you.

Men Style Devotees

A PROMINENT New York tailor says that men now pay more attention to the styles than do women.

Most young men are fastidious in their dress and middle-aged and old men follow the lead of the younger ones in an attempt to fool Old Pa Time.

Clothes do not make the man, but they give him confidence, and confidence, as Wildcat would say, is what men these days need nothing else but.

Women take less interest in new styles than men. Perhaps the reason is that there is so little of a woman's dress to look at.

Tales That Are Told

Convincing

DAUGHTER: "You know, dad, Jim always said he'd never marry until the right girl came along."

Dad: "Well, how does he know you are the right one?"

"Oh, I told him I was."

Her Part

A GIRL, winner of a local beauty contest in which the first prize was a part in a big film play, left her native town the envy and admiration of all her friends.

Weeks passed without news; then one day she returned and resumed her former occupation.

"But what about acting for the pictures?" she was asked. "Didn't they give you a part?"

"Yes, they gave me a part," she answered, bitterly. "They told me I could be the hand that held the bottle marked 'Poison' in the villain's nightmare!"

That Was That

AN AMBITIOUS young man decided to learn Spanish and had asked his teacher to tea in order to further their acquaintance and map out a course of study.

As haddock was served the linguist explained different Spanish combinations and pronounced them. Finally, however, there came a strange-sounding word pronounced with evident difficulty.

"And is that another Spanish word?" asked the young man dubiously.

"No," replied his guest; "that was a fish-bone."
